15TH SOLARIUM DERBY AT INLET SUNDAY

Come daylight Sunday all roads will lead to Saanich Inlet waters for the 15th edition of the Solarium Salmon Derby.

Fishing will start at 6 a.m. and close at 2 p.m. Contestants to qualify for prizes—and there are many of them—must weigh in their catches at three weigh-in stations: Hall's, Holders and the Anchorage. Fish must be on the floats before the closing gun. Prizes will be presented at the Anchorage at 3 with the public invited. (See story Page 10.)

FLOWERS FOR ROCKY

On the go after a surprise all-night meeting with Vice-President Richard Nixon in New York, Governor Nelson Rockefeller receives flowers this morning before taking off for Republican national convention opening

Monday in Chicago. Nixon and Rockefeller said they reached agreement on a party platform, heightening speculation they may run as a team in the November election. (AP Wirephoto.)

Union Asks Probe

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Independent Canadian Ironworkers' Union has asked for a provincial government investigation into hiring and firing on the Second Narrows Bridge project by Dominion Bridge Company.

Gang Grabs $12,000

PRINCEVILLE, Que. (UPI) — A five-man machine gun-toting gang traded shots with police Friday in this quiet Quebec community and then escaped carrying with them approximately $12,000 loot from a bank holdup minutes earlier.

RCMP Probe Blaze

OTTAWA (UPI) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police today investigated an early morning fire that caused "considerable" damage to a new federal government building in the south end of the city.

Kennedy Briefed

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (UPI) — Sen. John F. Kennedy was briefed for more than two hours by central intelligence chief Allen W. Dulles today on U.S. problems around the world, with particular attention to the situation in Africa and Cuba.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller and Richard M. Nixon made up their Republican platform differences today in a unity move which killed the last threat of opposition to Nixon's nomination for president.

Their agreement revived speculation that the New York governor might be drafted for vice-president at next week's Republican national convention despite a new denial by Rockefeller.

The two erstwhile antagonists met privately for six hours in a New York apartment and emerged today with a platform agreement which the governor said he could "support with pride and vigor."

Some eight hours later, Rockefeller flew here and jubilantly told newsmen that his views on party principles for the 1960 election campaign had prevailed.

'He Couldn't Refuse a Draft'

The governor told newsmen he and Nixon discussed the question of the vice-presidential nomination and that he repeated he would not take it under any circumstances. He said Nixon understood this.

But some Republican leaders maintained that Rockefeller could not refuse a convention draft as Nixon's running-mate.

Assuming the Republican resolutions committee goes along with the Nixon-Rockefeller agreement, these leaders said that having got the platform he wanted, the governor

'CORONATION' CONVENTION?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fifteen Rockefeller supporters Friday night picketed the headquarters of New Yorkers for Nixon carrying signs that read, "We want Rocky" and "We want a convention, not a coronation."

Waving a statement he had issued in New York with Nixon's approval, Rockefeller said, "If you don't think that represents my views, you're crazy."

could not with good grace reject a bid to serve the party.

It appeared unlikely now that Rockefeller's name would even be put before the convention as a favorite-son candidate for the presidential nomination.

NO NOMINATION

New York State Republican chairman Judson Morhouse, who greeted Rockefeller at the airport, said he did not think the governor would be put in nomination against Nixon as long as he keeps insisting he is not a candidate.

Rockefeller's position has been that he is not a candidate but would accept a genuine draft for the top post. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York also told newsmen he did not believe Rockefeller would be put in nomination.

Earlier, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said that although the vice-president and the governor discussed the second place on the ticket, "no deal was made."

Provinces To Levy Own Taxes?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Premiers of the 10 provinces may find themselves under pressure from the federal government to take back responsibility for levying their own taxes, as the preliminary discussions get underway at the dominion-provincial conference here Monday.

At the tough bargaining talks Ottawa may suggest that it still collect the taxes but that they be taken out of the taxpayers' pockets in the name of the province wherein the taxpayer resides, thus shifting the responsibility for the level of taxation from the federal to provincial governments.

British Columbia will join with the other provinces Monday in pressing Ottawa for more money under the existing tax rental agreements. At the same time it will enter into preliminary discussions for improving the financial deal for the provinces in the proposed new agreement to become effective April 1, 1962.

IMMEDIATE NEED

When the dominion-provincial meetings get under way the premiers will hammer home the need for additional funds to be made payable immediately. They will also stress the need for municipalities for increased income now and in the future.

The draft agenda of the conference scheduled to continue for three days has been a closely guarded secret. However, the Times has learned that it has nine points. These are understood to include:

1. Opening statements.
2. Tax Arrangements—A discussion of the possible arrangements after March 31, 1962, under the following headings:
(A) Arrangements with respect to personal income tax, corporation income tax and succession duties.
(B) Equalization and fiscal need payments—the principles underlying equalization and fiscal need payments and an examination of possible formulas and of the existing arrangements including equalization, the Atlantic provinces' adjustments grant and any special circumstances relating to the financial position of the province of Newfoundland after March 31, 1962.

3. Uniform rules for allocation of corporate profits and the income of individuals to provinces.

4. Taxation of natural resource industries.

5. Sharing of the federal income tax collected for corporations whose main business is in the province.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Father of mercy, fill us with Thy blessings this day. As we look upon all the beauty that surrounds us, help us to see that these things express Thy love and concern for us. Take from us all desires for the drab, the shabby, and the discordant things of life and help us to love that which is great and beautiful. We pray in the name of our Master. Amen.

SOVIET PLANE CHARGES DENIED BY Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said categorically today that Russian charges that aircraft carrying nuclear weapons took off from Canadian bases "had no foundation in fact whatever."

He made the statement to the Commons in reply to a question by H. W. Herdridge, (CCF, Kootenay West) who quoted Russian protests in the United Nations.

Congo Nation 'In Collapse'

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—A United Nations official here said today the Congo as a modern republic has "virtually collapsed."

KATANGA URGES:

'United States Of Congo'

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (Reuters) — Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga province today proposed a "United States of the Congo."

He told a press conference he would willingly work with the central Congolese government, from which Katanga seceded July 11, if it would agree to his proposal.

Tshombe said he favored a confederation of the Congo's provinces in place of a single government as the best solution. He appealed to other Congolese leaders to support such a project.

Gilbert Pongo, a newspaperman close to Tshombe who also addressed the press conference, described President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana and President Sekou Toure of Guinea as being "a bridge between Africa and Moscow."

Tshombe said he agreed with that view.

Pongo said he was going to the United Nations to speak against Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba who left for New York Friday. Tshombe already has denounced Lumumba as "an unscrupulous bandit."

The provincial premier said today he had declared Katanga's independence to save it from economic ruin and anarchy.

The UN spokesman said Belgian troops were scheduled to leave Leopoldville by 6 p.m., but refused to speculate whether they would all be out by that time.

NO PAY CHEQUES

He admitted the possibility of disturbances at the end of the month when the Congolese will look for their pay cheques that would normally have come from Belgian employers who, almost to a man, have fled.

"These people are fast running out of money and food and there is always the possibility of trouble if some order cannot be restored to the economic life of the country," the UN official said.

Meanwhile, Sture Linner of Sweden, a UN technical representative here, said the health situation in the Congo is "extremely grave." He said that virtually all the Belgian doctors either had fled or were planning to leave as soon as the Belgian troops pull out.

"We have urgently appealed to the World Health Organization and the International Red Cross for doctors and nurses," he said.

Both Europeans and Congolese wondered how the confused Congo Republic would react to the absence of its "strongman" Premier Patrice Lumumba, now on his way to North America.

Four Drowned Near Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rescuers watched in horror today as a 57-foot fishing boat sank slowly into the depths of Georgia Strait, its occupants still knocking frantically for help on the inside of the overturned hull.

"It was terrible, just terrible," said Frank Wright, 41, one of the rescuers. "We were so close and they were alive up till the last minute."

Three men were believed drowned when the boat, Unimak, pulled loose from rescue boats supporting it and submerged just after skindivers had brought out the body of a 19-year-old girl.

The Unimak's cook, Robert Pederson, 30, of Vancouver, was thrown clear and rescued when she flipped up and overturned after striking a tow cable between the fishparker Cape Flattery and a barge.

Police said names of the four who were drowned would be released as soon as they were able to identify the girl, believed to be the skipper's fiancée. Owner of the boat is Eric Johnson of Port Coquitlam, B.C.

Tragedy Described by Rescuers

The tragic story was told by Don Elms, 31, of Whalley, and Larry Hickey, 31, of North Vancouver, crew members of the boat Sea Fox II.

Hickey said the accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. and they were on the scene five minutes later. The Cape Flattery had already picked up the cook and all they could see was the overturned hull of the Unimak.

"We cruised around for half an hour looking for survivors and then we came back to the overturned hull," he said. "We jumped onto the hull to put a lantern on and then we heard the knocking from inside the hull. We knocked back four times to let them know that help had arrived."

"They answered back with four knocks," Hickey said they got two lines on the boat, but it wasn't until 2:30 a.m. that a boat carrying the skindivers arrived.

Skindiver Wright, 41, owner of Mercury Water Taxi at Horseshoe Bay, said he got into a skindiving costume as soon as he arrived at the scene.

"Another kid from one of the boats, Wayne Stanton, of Lorde, knew something about skindiving so he came down with me."

"We went into the wheelhouse and found the body of a girl. We didn't know if she was dead or alive but we brought her right up."

"Then we went down again and started looking for the other two people. (It was learned later that three were aboard.) We searched the galley and then we tried to find the door to the engine room. We couldn't find the door so we surfaced again and asked the cook how to get in."

'Suddenly I Felt a Funny Sensation'

"He said the door led from the wheelhouse but it was jammed. We went down again and tried to force the door open. Suddenly I felt a funny sensation as though the boat was changing position. At the same time a lifeline held by Hickey and Elms was jerked frantically."

"We came right up and saw the boat was losing air and slowly going down. The knocking was still going on."

"The freighter Brentwood was standing by and its crew quickly rigged a line to the Unimak but as the boat began to sink the line snapped the Brentwood's mast and slowly sank."

"It was just terrible, just terrible."

Ten vessels in the area, including the Canadian Pacific ferry Princess of Vancouver, had raced to the scene off Cape Roger Curtis, 10 miles from here at the southern tip of Bowen Island, answering call for assistance from the Cape Flattery. They circled the Unimak to form a breakwater against the waves and make rescue attempts easier.

It was three hours after the collision before the fishing boat finally sank in about 400 feet of water. There was no immediate attempt to recover the bodies of the three trapped men.

It was not known if the Unimak carried an axe with which the men might have attempted to chop through the hull, which RCMP said was solidly constructed of three-inch planking.

CONGO REBELS FOILED IN BID FOR $8,000,000

Canadian Pilot 'Saves' Fortune

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—An attempt to prevent the departure from Stanleyville of an aircraft with 400,000,000 Congo francs ($8,000,000) aboard was reported today by the plane's captain, Michael D. McCallum of Winnipeg.

McCallum, 37, ignored the order not to leave the airport, hurriedly took off and flew to Leopoldville with the cash and the Congo secretary of state for finance and a United Nations official who had gone to Stanleyville to collect the money from the Congo central bank.

The cash was urgently needed to replenish the almost-empty coffers of the country's main central bank in the capital.

McCallum in an official report to his employers, Sabena Airlines, said he had a crew of three aboard his DC-4 and the finance secretary of state, Andre Tshibangu, and the UN official as passengers.

The UN official said the object of the flight was to pick up at Stanleyville several cases containing 400,000,000 Congo francs required urgently by the central bank in Leopoldville.

A group of Ethiopian UN troops who, McCallum said, appeared to have the airport under control met the plane on arrival at Stanleyville.

When Tshibangu and the UN official tried to leave the field, they were attacked in the terminal building by Congolese soldiers of the rebelling security force publique.

Tshibangu was struck in the face several times by the force publique commandant and several of the soldiers.

They disarmed the UN official.

Ordered off plane

Meantime, several Ethiopian soldiers ordered the crew at gunpoint to disembark, searched them and took all their money and personal effects.

After an hour, an Ethiopian lieutenant arrived to investigate. McCallum complained bitterly of the treatment and the lieutenant ordered the troops immediately to return the property.

McCallum explained their mission but he doubted if the lieutenant understood.

When an Ethiopian captain arrived at the aircraft he gave permission for McCallum and his crew to return to the plane where they remained. Meantime, Tshibangu who with the UN official had spent the night at a nearby guesthouse, got into town and with the help of a United Nations guard, succeeded in picking up his cases of banknotes which were later loaded into the aircraft.

McCallum had been asked by the Sabena station manager to take along some European refugees awaiting transportation to Leopoldville. He quickly decided, however, not to wait for them, started the aircraft engines and taxied out for take-off.

"While taxiing, people were waving their arms indicating that we were to stop our engines," McCallum said.

"I ignored all of this and entered the runway. An RAF Hastings had just landed and was taxiing back down the runway. I asked him to clear the runway immediately which he did."

$80 MILLION SUGAR MILL TAKEN OVER BY CUBA

HAVANA (UPI)—The Castro regime seized the third and last of the Cuban America Company's sugar mills valued at $80 million Friday.

Sugar men predicted the sweep eventually would include all sugar mills and land in Cuba, including the 37 American-owned mills.

A fourth mill, Cuban owned, also was taken over by government "intervention."

Total value of all American-owned mills is estimated to be $200,000,000.

LONDON—The thought of a flea makes Robert George itch-itch to get his hands on it.

Of all the strange hobbies in the British Isles, George's is among the strangest.

He is working on a flea map of the United Kingdom.

When finished it will show what kind of a flea a British subject is likely to find by scratching around in his old home town. So far George has catalogued and bottled nearly 60,000 of the wingless jumpers.

A teacher, he's compiling his flea map in his spare time.

Up to now he's discovered that Britain has 61 varieties of fleas. He's recorded specimens from 37 countries.

MEXICO CITY—Two patient pilferers made themselves a tidy fortune by stealing from the button factory where they worked. Police said Luis Magayon and Alvaro Valencia walked out with an average of 500 buttons a day and got away with 1,000,000 buttons before they were caught.

BINGHAM, England—The headmaster of Toothill County School said today his students "became rather emotional" when they discovered the lamb they had eaten for lunch was the school mascot.

MOSCOW—Dry cleaners are getting a stained reputation in Russia.

The newspaper Trud reported some Muscovites report getting garments back with more spots than they had when they were sent to the cleaners.

Trud cited a woman whose coat was returned with one cuff torn off. It said when she demanded the cuff be sewn back on she was told: "You are naive. We have a whole room filled with torn-off cuffs. It would be easier to find a needle in a haystack than to find your cuff."

In desperation she asked what she should do, Trud said.

The reply: "Tear off the other cuff."

KLOSTERS, Switzerland—Movie actress Deborah Kerr was married today to Hollywood film writer Peter Viertel in a simple ceremony at this alpine resort.

It was the second marriage for both.

LOS ANGELES—Frank Sherman and his wife Bernice lost 159 pounds to gain a daughter.

The Shermans were told three months ago they must lose weight if they hoped to adopt a one-year-old girl whom they have raised from birth.

At that time Sherman, 39, weighed 320 pounds and his 37-year-old wife weighed 250. They appeared in court Friday scaled down to 277 and 214 respectively.

Superior Judge Ben Koenig ruled at the closed hearing that the couple could keep Janet, who celebrated her first birthday Thursday. The months of reducing had paid off.

A doctor testified at an earlier hearing 90 days ago that because they were overweight the couple "might not live to be good parents."

MAY BE CHANGES

Item four in the proposed agenda, taxation of natural resource industries, indicates that Ottawa has in mind possible changes in taxes levied on mining and logging operations.

This will be of particular interest to British Columbia and to Ontario.

The provinces are expected to urge in this field that they be given a better deal because they do most of the development work. After the industries get into production the federal government steps in and takes off the "gravy."

At present the federal corporate income tax is roughly 50 per cent, out of which the provinces get a rebate of 9 per cent. The provinces may advocate the federal tax be cut to 25 per cent, and the provinces be allowed to collect 25 per cent. There is a chance that the federal authorities will accept such a proposition under the terms of the proposed new agreement.

'STANDARD TAX'

The present tax-rental arrangement provides the provinces this "standard tax" share—13 per cent of personal income tax collections, nine per cent of corporation profits, and 50 per cent of succession duties.

In addition, Ottawa makes equalization payments to the less-wealthy provinces to raise their per-capita yield from the standard taxes to the level of the average yield in Ontario and British Columbia, the two wealthiest provinces.

Quebec has rented none of the three tax fields to Ottawa, collecting revenues in all three.

Ontario has rented the personal income tax field but collects its own corporation income tax and succession duty.

Liberal MP 'Only Fair'

OTTAWA (CP)—Mervyn Hardie, 41-year-old Liberal Commons member for the northern riding of Mackenzie, was described late Friday as in only "fair" condition by Civic Hospital authorities.

Mr. Hardie, a native of Regina, was rushed to hospital Thursday night suffering a serious heart attack.

The Liberal party's only Commons member west of Ontario, Thursday night received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church and Friday was "resting fairly comfortably" but was "still considered quite ill."

DESPERATE BATTLE TO CHECK BLAZE

Water Bomber Pilot Killed

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP)—Forest firefighters mounted a massive ground-and-air attack Friday on the huge and stubborn 13,000-acre Spius Creek blaze, repeatedly beaten down during the last five days only to blow up again with redoubled fury.

Friday was a day of desperation for 600 men fighting the province's biggest fire in stifling smoke and 90-degree heat 60 miles southwest of here.

After being brought under control Thursday, the fire roared up again fanned by 30-to-40-mile-an-hour winds, destroying new valuable stands of pine, cedar and spruce, razing a farmhouse, levelling a camp for 280 firefighters and sending six men to hospital.

The day also was marked by tragedy in the Kelowna area of the huge Kamloops fire district when pilot Victor Jackson, 24, of Edmonton, died in the wreckage of his water-bombing plane.

Jackson's plane apparently was drawn down by a wind draft while making an approach to a small fire at Gallagher's Canyon, 15 miles east of Kelowna. It was the first loss of life in the two-week-old battle against hundreds of forest fires in the Kamloops district.

Four water bombers, including a B-17 Flying Fortress were thrown into the renewed Spius Creek battle Friday night, each making two passes at a new hot spot in the north-west corner.

The planes dropped a total of 7,600 gallons of water before nightfall and forest service officials said the blaze appeared under control again along its 14-mile front.

Six men taken to hospital after being overcome by smoke when the fire blew up Friday were reported recovered Friday night.

Most of the 275-odd other fires in the hard-hit forest district were under control Friday night. But exceptions included a 200-acre blaze south of Speices Bridge in the Fraser Canyon.

Funeral in City

Funeral service for pilot Victor Jackson, 24, killed Friday when his plane crashed near Kelowna fighting a forest fire, will be held here at St. John's Anglican Church at a time to be announced later.

He was the son-in-law of Group Capt. E. A. McGowan and Mrs. McGowan of Victoria, marrying their daughter, Peta Ann, four years ago in Alberta. They have three children and lived in Edmonton.

Mr. Jackson had been a pilot with the RCAF until one month ago, and had intended to study dentistry this fall.

Alone They Did It

AMONG THE RELIABLE HARBINGERS of an approaching provincial election is the report on the miracles of Social Credit. Every household in British Columbia is receiving through the mail, free, a lively booklet explaining that in the last eight years the Bennett Government has made British Columbia just about the most fortunate land in the world.

No loyal British Columbian has ever doubted that this is a wonderful country to live in, but perhaps it is not entirely the creation of the Bennett Government. Possibly the wealth of the land itself, the energies of the people and the rapid progress of the nation have had something to do with our good fortune, which long antedates the arrival of Mr. Bennett.

But one might suppose from its booklet that before the present Government took charge no roads, hospitals, schools or industries had ever been built in British Columbia, no social services provided, nothing of importance accomplished. One might even suppose that the economy of British Columbia lived and flourished in splendid isolation, quite independent of the national economy.

If the Bennett Government claims credit for all the good things in this province then it must accept responsibility for the bad. What about a slow-down in some lines of business for example? What about unemployment? Mr. Bennett has a ready answer: All the accomplishments of the eight years are the work of the Provincial Government, but all the failures result entirely from national policy. If Social Credit were only in office at Ottawa all our troubles would be over.

Meanwhile the Provincial Government says it could achieve still greater progress were it not for the "tight money" policy of the Federal Government. In plain English this simply means that the Bank of Canada should inflate the currency again, but as Mr. Fleming rightly says, this would not produce the result desired by Mr. Bennett. It would cut interest rates temporarily as more money was available for lending but it would soon raise them again as investors switched their funds into equities as a hedge against inflation.

The Social Credit booklet does not add that no one in Canada is doing proportionately more than the British Columbia Government to make money tight and interest rates high by its huge borrowings, its pressure on the money market. But these borrowings do not constitute debt, as the booklet makes clear. In the last eight years, all debt has been eliminated—except for a trifling sum of about half a billion dollars accumulated by the Government indirectly through its various agencies.

Certainly the Bennett Government has done some useful things for British Columbia but its virtues do not include modesty and all its expenditures, of which it boasts, were paid for by no one but the people. The eight-year report would be more effective, even on the lowest partisan level, if it did not give Social Credit entire credit for everything.

Trouble for Britain's Laborites

LEADERS IN BRITAIN'S LABOR Party have expressed their honest personal grief over the death of Mr. Aneurin Bevan.

Now they, and particularly Mr. Hugh Gaitskell, have occasion to weigh that loss in political terms. In about three months the Labor Party will hold its party conference. When that event is staged, an embattled Mr. Gaitskell will lack the backing accorded him by his erstwhile rival, Mr. Bevan. Without that support he may count on losing the weight of mass endorsement within the rank and file which followed Bevan and which Mr. Bevan ranged behind his leader.

Mr. Gaitskell faces a serious challenge from a coalition of trade union bosses and ardent left-wingers. They disagree with his moderation not only on the socialization of industry but on such vital questions as disarmament, American air bases and NATO commitments.

How this disagreement will end is a matter the conference should decide. At this point, however, it seems destined to split the ranks of the Labor Party at a time when there is no Nye Bevan to draw the divergent forces together.

The result threatens to weaken still further the strength of the Opposition to the inescapable detriment of the British parliamentary system. It depends on a strong Opposition to offer an alternative to the party in power.

Division and strife were apparent in the Labor Party some time before Mr. Bevan died. They appear more irreconcilable today because there is no one of the persuasive and forceful Welshman's capacity to overcome them.

Smoke Pouring Out of the Cracks?

THE CITY COUNCIL MAY NOT agree unanimously that Victoria has a smoke problem. It seems to agree, however, that its anti-smoke bylaw is no good. That at least could be a starting point to settlement of the hazy debate of recent weeks.

If the bylaw is no good, then let's get a good one. If the fly ash escapes from wide cracks in the legislation, then obviously the cracks should be cemented up or new legislation procured.

Until that action is taken, the smoke debate remains so much oratory—and not very clear oratory at that.

Hospitals and Tight Money

VICTORIANS CAN BE EXCUSED for looking a bit cynically at Mr. Bonner's explanation of Provincial Government efforts to alleviate unemployment and to fix the blame on Ottawa for the number of jobless.

Hospital construction, he said, is being speeded. Then he added, "The problem of unemployment in Canada can be laid squarely on the Federal Government for continuing its tight money policy."

It is over a year since the Royal Jubilee Hospital announced that its campaign objective had been exceeded by public donations. The most recent announcement from the hospital authorities indicated that work on the project would not start until next winter.

This is tight money? This is speeding up hospital construction?

SAD STORY OF A LOST CAUSE

Rather Lose With Nixon Than Win With Rockefeller

AT this stage, almost on the eve of the Republican convention, Governor Nelson Rockefeller is a lost cause rather than a man of destiny. His position is very different from Mr. Adlai Stevenson's at the Democratic convention. He never was a reluctant candidate. He tried to win the nomination from Mr. Nixon, failed in the attempt; tried again after the collapse of the summit conference, and still has found himself very much of an outsider.

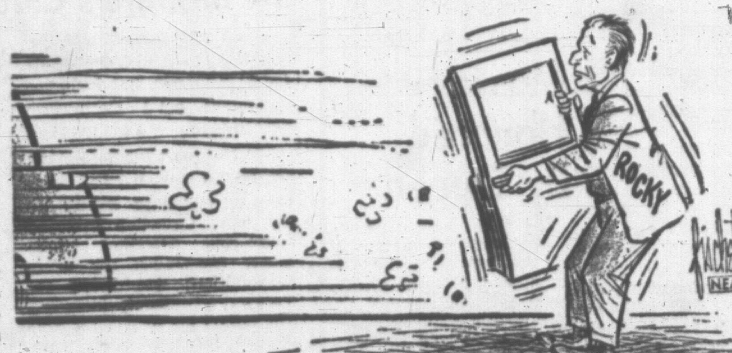

When he made his first bid just over a year ago the Republicans turned against him because they were certain they could win with Mr. Nixon and they thought Mr. Nixon deserved the nomination on his record of service to the party. Now the outlook is much less promising for the Republicans, but Governor Rockefeller has not been helped by this change.

Most Republicans regard him as a trouble maker who is trying to divide the party, cast doubt on the greatness of Mr. Eisenhower, challenge the leadership of Mr. Nixon and provide new opportunities for Senator Kennedy in the presidential campaign. They would withdraw these criticisms if Mr. Rockefeller accepted the vice-presidential nomination.

Resentment

This resentment has been deepened by his testing before the Republican platform committee. Except for a few specialists on foreign affairs there has been little interest in his proposal to have Canada, the United States and Latin America associate themselves with the Common Market in Western Europe. Such a partnership would end the economic rivalry now plaguing Europe, for the Common Market and the Outer Seven would resolve their differences if they could rely on economic co-operation with Canada and the United States.

But the Republican politicians in Chicago are less interested in a spacious design that might save the free world than they are in some clever stratagem that will save their party in November. They ignored his wisdom on foreign affairs and concentrated instead on his criticism of Mr. Eisenhower for showing a lack of candor in discussing defence and foreign policy with the American people. He came to a convention that was eager to write a moderate civil rights platform so the Republican party would have a chance of winning some southern states and yet Governor Rockefeller urged the Republicans to be more extreme in their pledges to the Negro than the Democrats had been in Los Angeles. He knew that Mr. Eisenhower had denied that the military advantage had swung to Russia's side and yet he argued that Russia would never have challenged the Monroe Doctrine and threatened to intervene in Cuba unless the rulers of the Kremlin no longer feared American power.

He knew that Mr. Eisenhower had a passionate concern about inflation and yet he boldly warned the Republicans that human values must always hold a sacred priority over a balanced budget. He knew that Mr. Nixon wanted the various states to participate in the health plan for the aged and yet he insisted that the plan would fail unless it formed part of the federal system of social security.

He knew that Mr. Nixon, unlike Senator Kennedy, believed that America's economic growth could be stimulated by greater emphasis on the private rather than the public sector of the economy and yet he asked for more power in Washington and a greater concentration of authority in the federal government.

No wonder that many Republicans recoiled from Mr. Rockefeller in dismay as a Democrat in disguise, and confessed that they would rather lose with Mr. Nixon than win with Mr. Rockefeller. They may yet have their unfortunate wish fully satisfied.

It is doubtful if Mr. Nixon can defeat Senator Kennedy but the Democrats are the first to admit that the governor would have a much stronger chance.

Completely Relaxed

You quite mistake the character of Governor Rockefeller if you think he is narrow or querulous or bitter as he advances his criticisms. He is completely relaxed and seems interested in nothing except speaking his conscience on matters of urgent public concern.

I first heard Governor Rockefeller at a meeting of the Council on Foreign Relations in New York. The address was admirable, alike in its literary grace and in its political responsibility. I doubt if a dozen men in the United States could have equalled this performance. Then I saw and heard him on various occasions in Washington, always with growing respect and admiration.

Last year in Chicago I watched a group of American reporters give him an ovation after a press conference, although some of his answers were clouded and uncertain. Like me, the reporters believed that Mr. Rockefeller could grow into greatness under the tuition of supreme responsibility in Washington. Finally I lost my heart to him in California when I saw his majestic and unbroken dignity in the face of calculated slurs by the Nixon organization. But I have no vote at the Republican convention and the delegates prefer a skilful party chieftain to a statesman who might give hope to the free world.

LOOSE ENDS

Driving Economical-Like to the Poorhouse

HER thrifty nature being well known, Mrs. Noggins' new automobile, a small British model, attracted much speculation in our neighborhood.

"I bought it," she told me in confidence, "before the Canadian Government could raise the tariff and the price. You 'ave to move fast these days to keep 'ead of a Government with fluid drive and no brakes. And you may be sure the Government will raise the price of cars to encourage people to buy 'em and 'elp the automobile industry in Ontario."

Like Mr. Diefenbaker is always telling us, we'll also 'elp our British friends by keeping out their cars, same as we done with textiles. We won't allow trade to rear its ugly 'ead or sordid commercialism to poison the pure ideals of the Commonwealth.

"Oh yes, if we're all drivin' over the hill to the poor 'ouse, like Will Rogers used to say, we must drive in a big, expensive Canadian model. No patriotic citizen would think of goin' broke in a cheap imported car. I'm ashamed to drive one myself but I guess I'm not rich enough to afford patriotism."

"Besides, if the Government can make prices 'igh enough people will appreciate wot they're gettin' fer their money and rush out and buy more goods and everybody will be prosperous. But the ignorant consumers 'ave an incurable prejudice against 'igh prices and a foolish addiction to 'low ones, which must be very discouragin' to any educated Government."

"THERE'S nothink wrong with the Government's tariff policy. It's jest that the public is too stupid to understand that the 'igher the price of goods the richer we all must be. And if we can only keep out all foreign goods and reduce the total supply we'll soon be rollin' in opulence."

"The real trouble is that the engine of the economic system is flooded with imports. Mr. Fleming's self-starter got jammed on budget night. Mr. Churchill busted a gasket and we've bin' drivin' under the influence of Diefenbaker. So the joy ride is over."

"But don't worry. We're goin' to maintain the second best livin' standard in the world even if everybody is out of work and not eatin' regular. The unemployed will always know that the wages they don't get are the second 'ighest wages unpaid anywhere and that ort to keep them quiet and content."

"THERE was nothink wrong, says Mr. Fleming, about our predictions in the future. It's jest that the economic system refused to grow like it should and you can't blame the Government fer that. Blame the stingy consumers that won't buy at 'igh prices. They deserve wot they get even if they don't get anythink. So the Government acts like a fella that arranges to float an iceberg in front of the Titanic and puts 'is own children on board, as first-class passengers, fer reasons of family pride."

"Anyways, we've still got our old, independent new foreign policy. Mr. Pearkes is tellin' everybody, fer free, 'ow to build a bomb shelter in the basement and that ort to terrify the Russians all right."

"THANKS to Mr. Pearkes we'll fight the nuclear war by good old Canadian do-it-yourself methods. We may import a few cheap foreign cars but, thank 'eaven, no bomb shelters. Yes sir, the national economy will boom again when Canadian workmen and materials is used to make every man's 'ome a fortress to protect us from the oratorical fall-out of Parliament."

"Some'ow the voters isn't impressed. But like the Government says, the elections in Quebec and New Brunswick 'ave no national significance. They 'ad nothink to do with politics but was only a matter of votes."

"Jest the same, after reading the election returns, Mr. Fleming is gettin' set to pay the provinces more money at their own expense to keep Mr. Frost 'appy, and that don't worry Mr. Fleming on account of another federal Government, after 1962, will 'ave to find the money."

"SOME of the Liberals is figgerin' to outbid Mr. Diefenbaker's promises before the next election but 'is no use. When it comes to somethink fer nothink nobody can beat the world's 'eavy-weight champion promise. No matter wot bid the Liberals make, Mr. Diefenbaker will double it in spades fer a grand slam and 'e always 'olds the joker so long as Mr. Churchill is in the cabinet."

"No matter, I've bought my English car before they could stop me," said Mrs. Noggins, "and it'll give me cheap mileage all the way to the poor 'ouse, though the 'igh-powered Cadillac set may get there a little later."

NEXT WEEK IN OTTAWA

Rough Weather for Mr. Fleming

FINANCE Minister Donald Fleming likes to be known as a bear for punishment, and the first few days of next week should prove, to some degree, just how much punishment the bear can take.

The premiers of Canada's ten provinces will be arriving in town this weekend, armed with statistics and briefs, all set to do battle at still another federal-provincial fiscal conference—those rather wearing legacies from the Fathers of Confederation. With few exceptions, the premiers want more money. And Mr. Fleming, faced with a rapidly souring economic situation, can't afford to let them have more money, and, even worse, he can't afford not to.

Until a few months ago, this conference looked like a breeze to Mr. Fleming. Six of the ten provinces had Conservative governments; Newfoundland and the remaining three had Social Credit or CCF governments. Now the Liberals hold Quebec, Newfoundland, and New Brunswick, and some of Mr. Fleming's best friends, Premier Roblin in Manitoba, and Premier Frost in Ontario have placed themselves in the opposition camp. Their public demands for a bigger share of the national purse have exceeded anything requested by the other governments.

In short, the finance minister will face a very hostile audience when the conference opens Monday.

Here is how the conference will work. A draft agenda has been prepared, and each premier will give his views on each item on the agenda. When they are finished, the Federal Government will express its views, without specifically stating its position. If there is general agreement on any particular item, the field of conflict will be narrowed.

At the end of the conference, everyone will go home, sort and sift the various points of view, run them through a statistical wringer, and generally prepare for the next meeting. There has to be a second meeting, and if the area of dispute is still too wide, a third may be called.

Ontario is really kicking over the traces. Premier Frost wants at least $100,000,000 a year more. And where to get it? The word in Ottawa is that Mr. Fleming will tell the provinces he is willing to increase their percentage of return from the rental tax fields.

Pressure from the provinces has been building up for some time, and the minister would have the greatest difficulty in attempting to hold the line where it is now. Increasing the province's take from the rental tax fields by, say, $300,000,000 a year, would cause considerable hardship to the budget-makers here in Ottawa, but the money doesn't have to be found until 1962, and things could be much brighter then.

To minimize such an increase, it is very likely Mr. Fleming, with the blessing of Premier Frost, will seek to re-adjust the so-called equalization payments. Some informed people claim he will accomplish this by making equalization payments on the existing tax-rental formula.

Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba could take quite a beating if that is, in fact, his intention. They would receive more money, but much less than if the equalization principles were applied to increased percentages.

The Maritime provinces constitute a mixed bag at this conference. Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia and Premier Shaw of P.E.I. are quite happy with their lot. They will probably ask Mr. Fleming to imbed the Atlantic provinces grants into any new agreement. Joey Smallwood, still smarting over the Diefenbaker government's abandonment of the transitional grants feature of Newfoundland's terms of union with Canada, will be out for blood. So will Premier Robichaud of New Brunswick, who is looking to Ottawa to pay for those hospital insurance premiums he promised to abolish.

Premier Lesage of Quebec will be driving a hard bargain. His election promises are going to cost millions, and Quebec's entry in the hospital insurance and Trans-Canada Highway programs alone must be giving Mr. Fleming nightmares. Moreover, Premier Lesage is an old hand at federal-provincial matters. He was one of Louis St. Laurent's picked experts on the subject.

Everyone knows how Mr. Frost feels. And Duff Roblin in Manitoba has already publicly complained at the treatment Manitoba is receiving under the existing agreement. Premier Douglas in Saskatchewan wants the federal treasury to pay some of the bills for his proposed new health insurance program. Premier Manning, whose province, by disposing of its natural resource assets, cannot be considered poor, will nevertheless seek more money. Premier Bennett of B.C. is in the same position.

The Simple Joys of Life in the Woods—With Art Gallery Interludes

By TONY EMERY

IF anyone had told me sixteen or seventeen years ago that I should be voluntarily going out into the wilds for a camping holiday every year when I was a middle-aged man with a family, I doubt if I could have found it possible to believe. Yet behold me now, newly returned from Somewhere on Vancouver Island, and already chafing at the stuffiness of indoor living and pining for the apocalyptic life of the camp and beach.

I suppose the key to my changed outlook about the joys of going back to Nature lies in the word "voluntarily." Between 1939 and 1945 I lived for much of the time very close to the earth, in every sense of that expressive phrase, and always as a result of orders and commands from on high, until I came to associate the open air with staff officers and every other form of unpleasantness, animal, vegetable and mineral. Such is the cussedness of the human being, that today I can persuade myself that I am essentially a rustic, needing only leg-gings, a stick to scratch a pig's back, and a haystack in my mouth to complete my happiness. A moment's reflection is needed to remind me that I was only exposed to the open air for a week; that the weather was never anything but celestial; and most important of all—I didn't have to do a hand's turn of work.

It is difficult, too, to pretend that life in the best of all provincial park campsites is exactly comparable with the hardships and privations that our pioneering forebears had to put up with. When you have running water from a tap only 25 yards away, and ready-sawn firewood for the fetching, and clean restrooms enough to satisfy the most restless, you have little justification for pretending that you know exactly how old H. D. Thoreau felt when he went to live by himself on the edge of Walden pond.

You can underline the difference between the genuine article and the spurious or pioneering-with-a-con opener-and-church-key variety that I favor myself by a careful choice of books to accompany your holiday. I happened to be trying to improve my knowledge of North-American exploration on my last excursion, and I found that reading, say, of the remarkable eight-year walk of Alvar Nunez Cabeza de Vaca from Florida to the Pacific coast of Mexico (near modern Mazatlan) between 1528 and 1536 gave me, a prodigious thirst, and added piquancy to the flavor of the potables peddled in one of those establishments so altruistically provided by a totalitarian government for its hopelessly-deprived subjects.

In the middle of my Arcadian existence I had to cross over to the large city that disfigures the shores of the Burrard Inlet and the adjacent delta, and the hours I spent among the pallid denizens of that demographical anomaly served only to hasten my footsteps back to the Island. I don't despise city dwellers, mark you—I am sorry for them, that's all. I know that if they had any choice in the matter they wouldn't put up with such terrible conditions.

Of course they have some compensations for having to eke out such a hellish existence, and the greatest of these is the existence of affairs like the Vancouver Festival, now in full swing over there. A visit to the Vancouver Art Gallery to see their festival shows reminded me that there are one or two things that I should soon miss if I had to live the rustic life for too long, and one of them at least is the sight of good painting.

The important shows with which the Vancouver Gallery is celebrating the Festival are apparently poles apart, but there is an interesting link which may not be immediately apparent. A magnificent display of the paintings of Tomioka Tessai, a Japanese contemporary of the French Impressionists, whose work excited B. C. Binning when he was visiting Japan a year or two ago, takes pride of place. Tessai was born in 1836, two years after Degas and four after Manet, but five years before Renoir and three before Cezanne. That places him against the background of the beginning of the so-called modern movement in art. The interesting thing about Tessai, though, is not so much his birthdate as the length of his working life; he died in 1924, not far short of 90 years old, and so long outlived his French contemporaries, of whom only Monet can compare with him for longevity.

If you have any preconceptions about rigidity and stylization in Japanese art I think you will have your eyes opened by the fresh and spontaneous handling of some of Tessai's studies on silk and paper, and I urge you not to miss the opportunity of seeing the work of this Oriental master when it comes to our show at Vancouver now. The other show at Vancouver now is also an eye-opener, and it is linked with Tessai by the fact that Japanese prints strongly influenced, among others, Toulouse-Lautrec, whose posters form part of a superbly-staged show of advertising masterpieces by some of the greatest designers of these ephemeral decorations.

This gives me the opportunity of saying once again that I have nothing against billboards as such; it is only ugly posters I detest—especially large ugly posters. If all posters were as good as the best ones, they would be an addition to the amenities of living, as you will surely agree after a visit to the Vancouver Gallery.

The Other Island

THE recent visit of the premier and members of his government to Salt Spring Island brought forth one of the finest examples of disrespectful attention of the century. We live in a time chiefly distinguished for a slavish adherence to a misconception concerning good manners; it seems to be the rule that one must never be rude. This is foolish; good manners only requires that one never be rude unintentionally.

Well, there is a citizen of Salt Spring who has enough gumption to express his opinions forcibly and rudely when the appropriate occasion arises. The occasion of the premier's visit was appropriate for this sturdy islander to express certain of his opinions as to the politics and personality of our public potentate, and he did so.

He was to be seen, standing demurely among the cheering multitudes, the picture of political docility. Not a cheer, not a groan, not a catcall escaped his lips as the great man and his entourage drew near. It was not until the official party was close enough to see, that he opened his knapsack, took out his old army respirator, and put it on. He left it there until the bigwigs were well away downwind.

Now there is a man who ought to be watched. It is from such carefully conceived and executed sparks of rebellion that the fires of democracy are kindled. This man is dangerous, a menace. He could set people thinking; or worse still, laughing. And once the chuckle spread, all sorts of dire political tremors could result.

There is no weapon so devastating in the hands of a skilful operator as ridicule. Its potency lies in the fact that it appeals to all people, of all ages and stages of intelligence; and once it starts, it spreads like swampland. More than one ruler has been dislodged by a well-timed joke.

Rulers, whether elected or effected, are singularly prone to ridicule. Their very position is ridiculous in the eyes of a reasonable man; they are obliged to be pompous, to assume the trappings of a sovereignty which is strictly illusory. They can no longer inspire fear; they doubtless hope they inspire love; they are certain they inspire respect. All too often this is not the case. And a ruler who inspires neither fear, love or respect is a setup for the horselaugh.

Maybe the man in the gasmask is the vanguard of sanity in British Columbia.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—A surge of cooler Pacific air spread inland over the coast Friday and into the northern interior overnight. The cooler air brought considerable cloudiness although very patchy over the south coast. The north coast and the northern interior had enough to give some shower activity. Today this cool air will reach into the southern interior and although not much cloud is expected afternoon temperatures were somewhat lower than those of Friday. An edge of high pressure is again building along the coast and this will bring a gradual clearing to cloudy areas in the next 36 hours so that Sunday should be another fine day for most regions.

Mayor Unhappy Over Gov't Road Proposal

Mayor Percy Scurrell Friday said he is "not happy" with a provincial government offer to give the city up to $65,000 for road building if it matches the grant dollar for dollar.

Commenting on Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury's dissatisfaction with a similar deal of up to $355,000 for the mainland city, Mayor Scurrell said: "We're not any happier than Vancouver is because, in the first place, we have nothing in our budget to match $65,000 and in the second place the government can veto any particular road project we want to do."

"After all, this is tax money they've collected from us and yet they are curtailing the city in how it is to be used because we could only spend it on designated streets which may or may not fit in with our needs. "We just don't like it."

Every Fish Took a Prize In Big Derby

Eager young anglers 3,000 strong landed 132 fish between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Friday at the city playground annual fishing derby off Ogden Point breakwater.

The youngsters doubled last year's entries and tripled the catch.

Prizes, donated by the T. Eaton Co., were awarded by manager William Gilmour. All who caught fish were entitled to a prize.

Winner Russell Brice, 15, of 205 Burnside, who caught a two-pound rock cod was closely followed by John Adams, 13, of 2100 Cook, who hooked a one-pound nine-ounce red snapper. Bruce won a bicycle, John a rod and reel.

The winning fish was caught half-way down the breakwater on the inside.

Gordon Hartley, director of city playgrounds, said the 15 playground supervisors attending had "quite a rough time untangling tackle. I can't remember when so much tackle has been lost."

Halibut Fishing To Close July 31

Halibut fishing season which started May 1 in the two main west coast halibut fishing areas closes at 6 a.m. PST, Sunday, July 31, the International Pacific Halibut Commission announced today.

The areas affected by closure are Area 2, from Willapa Bay to Cape Spencer, and 1B from Hecate Head to Willapa Bay.

Both areas reopen again Sept. 11 and close Sept. 18.

PROSECUTIONS THREATENED SPRINKLERS

NORTH COWICHAN—Reeve D. C. Morton said today it may be necessary to ban all sprinkling or prosecute offenders.

Sprinkling hours in Maple Bay have been cut down but property owners are not co-operating with the municipal council, Reeve Morton said.

The same thing is happening "to a lesser extent" in Chemainus, he said.

"It isn't regarded as an emergency yet, but this hot weather may keep on for another six weeks," Reeve Morton said.

60 Per Cent Back Amalgamation

LADYSMITH—An amalgamation petition circulated in the rural areas north and south of here has the 60 per cent of signatures required by the Municipal Act, and will be submitted shortly to Ladysmith village commission.

Commission chairman Leonard Ryan has promised that the petition, which asks that the areas concerned become part of the village of Ladysmith, then will be checked and submitted to the Ladysmith ratepayers in the form of a plebiscite.

The petition, sponsored by Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce, would extend the village boundaries roughly two miles north and south.

Area would be increased about five times, and population would rise from 2,100 to more than 3,000. Adoption of the petition by the Ladysmith ratepayers would mean additional revenue of $72,000 to the village and development of recreational sites, and would give residents control of the waterfront.

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—John C. McDougall Thursday won a vacant school trustee seat by acclamation.

$248,280 High School Bid Accepted

Tender of $248,280, submitted by Patterson Construction Ltd. of Victoria for construction of a new junior high school to serve the Somenos district, was accepted this week by the Cowichan District No. 65 school board.

Other bids were:
Mainland Construction Company Ltd., Burnaby, $257,935;
Farmer Construction Company Ltd., Victoria, $254,573;
H. E. Fowler and Sons Ltd., Victoria, $249,688; E. J. Hunter and Sons Ltd., Victoria, $264,928.

Education department approved the bylaw only if a small gymnasium was built, and while at one time the board considered building a larger gym at its own expense, it finally decided to forego the plan because of demands it would make on the contingency fund.

"I feel badly that we haven't sufficient funds for a proposed gym," said Trustee Mrs. V. W. Tarlton. "I want everyone to be aware of the fact that we can't build a larger gym because of the department's conditions."

J. A. Teasdale of Duncan was hired as of Aug. 1 to act as clerk of works on the new project. Job will be for six months.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

McDonald Park

SIDNEY REVIEW—Hon. Earle C. Westwood, minister of recreation in the B.C. government and member of the legislature for Nanaimo and the Gulf Islands, is doing a good job. Under his guidance more and more public camping grounds and marine parks are coming into existence. We give him full marks for the progress his department is making towards permitting British Columbians and tourists alike to enjoy outdoor living-in, this province.

He has taken steps to ensure that a valuable parcel of good land contiguous to McDonald Park will be included in the park and developed as camping sites. McDonald Park is the only public camping ground on the entire Peninsula. It has already proven inadequate as traffic throughout this district increases.

WEST COAST ADVOCATE—City council would be well advised to take a second look at the proposal which would see a tax or licence imposed upon empty lots where potential downtown parking space is available. There is enough trouble now without placing further impediments in the road of parking assistance program.

Certainly safeguard the city and property owners through a regulating bylaw but by all means give consideration to the owners who are willing to maintain such lots for rental to those working in the downtown district. One can not conclude that this is a money-making venture similar to trailer parking lots where many services are demanded. Downtown parking puts some activity into an empty lot that would otherwise grow weeds and gather other nuisance.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

At some moment in the dawn of history there must have been a man who desired, passionately, an article which was neither useful, nor an object of personal adornment, nor yet a thing of ritual significance.

That man was the first collector, and he deserves a place in our esteem beside the first man to feed an animal, not because he could use it or eat it, but because it was beautiful or companionable, thus becoming the first keeper of a pet.

There have been collectors ever since; nations form vast collections of beautiful or curious objects and house them in museums; private collectors assemble as much as they can get of whatever their taste and their purse dictates.

There are many handbooks for collectors, and Mr. F. St. George Spendlove of the Royal Ontario Museum has just added a distinguished volume to this library, called Collector's Luck (Ryerson).

It is of special interest for two reasons: it emphasizes the collection of Canadian objects, and this is a field still comparatively fresh; it also preaches Mr. Spendlove's doctrine of the small, choice collection which is rooted in taste and knowledge, as opposed to the large, inclusive collection which represents money.

In addition the book has charm because of its personal, uncompromising style. It is happily free of that "Come on chaps, collecting is a great game and wonderful therapy, so let's unearth some Nova Scotia bagpipe-reamers, shall we?" spirit which is so repugnant to the connoisseur.

But when you study the process of manufacture, and the charm of the color, the spirited pose of horse and rider, and the feeling which lies behind the design, begin to impress themselves upon you, and you know why King William is superior to your Crown Derby dinner plate.

It is characteristic of things that are worth collecting that they have overtones and suggestions beyond the ordinary. Being a collector is a matter of attuning yourself to those overtones and suggestions.

Collecting is educative, as Mr. Spendlove suggests, but in the pleasantest possible way. What does his book cover?

On the front of the book is a picture of a tin-enamel plate bearing a portrait of King William of Orange; there is not a commercial crockery shop in Canada that could not provide you with a hundred plates more neatly, more professionally decorated.

Eight chapters on pottery and porcelain, a chapter on glass, a chapter on the Mohawk silver and one on the French-Canadian silversmiths; a chapter on clocks, one on French furniture and this is unique — Canadian Regency furniture, eighteenth century furniture in the Chinese style, and a chapter on Canadian prints, about which Mr. Spendlove must be one of the world's foremost authorities, as his earlier book, The Face of Early Canada showed.

In addition there is an excellent introductory chapter on the reasons for being a collector, and an equally valuable final chapter of hints for those who are making a beginning.

Collecting brings an increased knowledge of craftsmanship and also of history, says Mr. Spendlove. Yes, and I think it also brings fulfillment of a special kind, because it is perhaps the only form of laudable greed, of praiseworthy hoarding.

There is in many of us a strain of the miser. We cannot be conventional misers because common sense, taste and taxes forbid it. We have been brought up to believe that it is bad to acquire for the sake of acquisition. But as collectors our little vice is transformed.

We collect for ourselves, but in most cases we have some notion that our children, a university, a museum, may some day be pleased to accept what we have put together. And there will be a tangible immortality, as long as our collection lasts.

Personally, I think this is admirable, and I hope that not too many people think in terms of universities and museums; I would much rather that they made collections for families.

For, after all, beautiful things have been made for use and private possession, and if they all disappear into the maw of public institutions, they are, in a sense, betrayed; they have been put in protective custody, and schoolchildren may look at them, but is that what their makers wanted?

As Mr. Spendlove has written in this book for private collectors we know what he thinks about the matter.

Winnipeg (CP) — Five Winnipeg housewives have converted an old house into their private art gallery.

The women, who started painting three years ago, renovated the house, painted it and hung 98 canvases they consider good enough for exhibition.

The venture began when Mrs. Peggy Sellers found that one of her friends, Mrs. Donna Moore, had the same idea as she did — to take up painting as a hobby.

They hunted up other acquaintances with the same interest and now meet once a week with artist Gissur Eliason to guide them.

"When they first started their styles were similar," said Mr. Eliason. "But it's amazing, as time went on they became very individualistic."

The other women in the group are Jean Osler, Barbara Schlingerman and Bette Rothwell.

Their gallery came about when the Moores, looking for insurance against apartment buildings going up in their area, bought the house near their own home.

The women worked a week nailing up 238 yards of burlap and sheets of black building paper.

Four hundred invitations were sent to friends before the exhibition. Paintings are for sale but the women are not exhibiting "with dollar signs in our eyes," said Mrs. Sellers.

May This House Be Safe From Tigers — Alexander King. Born Free — Joy Adamson. Folk Medicine — D. C. Jarvis. I Kid You Not — Jack Paar. The Law and the Profits — Cyril Parkinson.

STAMP CORNER

From the time that Sarawak issued its first postage stamp in 1869, until 1946, when the territory became a British Crown Colony, its stamps all showed the portraits of one or other of the Brooke family, who, as is well known, were English rajahs over this piece of Borneo for 100 years.

The last stamp issued under the old regime was a centenary set of four which came out in 1946, featuring the portraits of the three rajahs, side by side.

There was one other person, however, who might have fittingly been honored on a Sarawak stamp, and that was the Baroness Burdett Coutts.

For she certainly acted the part of the first rajah's guardian angel. She was his lifelong friend, and took the keenest possible interest in his unique political experiment.

When he took over as rajah she was 32 years of age, and the richest heiress in the world. He was a bachelor of 43, and had shortly before inherited a fortune of £30,000 from his father — equal to about a quarter of a million dollars today.

BENEFACTOR Sir James Brooke took his responsibilities very seriously. He devoted his life and fortune to the good of his subjects. He stamped out piracy and gangsterism which had reduced the natives to poverty and misery, and did all in his power to make the country law abiding and prosperous.

In all these aims he was ably backed by the influence and wealth of Miss Coutts. She interviewed cabinet ministers on his behalf, loaned him money, and was consulted on all moves that he had in mind for the progress of the country.

She did her best to have Sarawak made a British protectorate, but the government showed no interest.

The territory was then offered by Brooke, first to France, and later, to King Leopold, as he was so conscious of its political vulnerability, but these offers were both turned down. Miss Coutts then supplied him with a gunboat to keep things in order.

He appreciated her help to the extent of once naming her as his successor to the rajahship.

Brooke died in 1868, and Miss Coutts did not marry until 1881, when she was 67 years of age.

Stamp Cheater Jailed

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Stamp dealer Arthur Desmond Shanahan was sentenced Friday to 15 months hard labor after being convicted on 16 of 22 charges of conspiracy and fraud involving more than $2,000,000. The charges alleged he bilked investors in his stamp auction concern.

ART IN REVIEW

By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Notebook Jottings Record Famous Potters' Arrival

Clifford Robinson, who lives in the Gulf Islands, and whose Batiks will be exhibited at the Art Gallery sometime this fall, has a small exhibition on view at the Provincial Library till the end of July. . . . Virginia Lewis has her exhibition of paintings now on view at The Point. . . . Barbara Burns has completed a commissioned painting of the Virgin and Child for St. George's, Cabbro Bay, her most ambitious painting to date and I look forward to seeing it installed.

It's quite amazing how quickly a notebook becomes filled with jottings for future articles. News items such as Mr. Mendel giving the city of Saskatoon $75,000 for the building of a local art gallery. A Victoria restaurateur rejecting two decorative sculptures by a local artist on the grounds that "they are too contemporary."

... (I certainly hope this restaurateur's steaks are "contemporary!")

Very contemporary and exciting things happening at the Art Gallery where Mrs. Desire Schoenland's art classes for children are a pleasure to behold, and where Miss Florence Daniels has handweaving classes for children working at capacity.

So popular and worthwhile are these handweaving classes that some of the students arrive half an hour before classes begin and show little inclination to go home at the end of the morning.

Enthusiasm Miss Daniels and her colleagues must be delighted with the children's enthusiasm and I, for one, would like to see these classes continue as part of the Art Gallery's winter program.

So, on through the notebook. A swim recorded last week when visiting Captain Morgan's Lodge at Genoa Bay where your critic had gone to inspect Captain Morgan's Art Gallery. The swimming pool was more tempting.

A special note here, I see, following a visit to Port Alberni, to give readers advance notice of the Alberni Valley Jury Show being held at Port Alberni from Oct. 6 to 13 inclusive.

This promises to be the largest jury show held in B.C. outside the annual Vancouver and Victoria Art Gallery open exhibitions. You had better watch the advertisement columns in this newspaper for further particulars. Alberni Valley Art Group are to be congratulated on their enterprise.

In Victoria I paid a visit to the heart of Chinatown to see for myself the Pieces of Eight arts and crafts shop on Government Street owned by Gordon Patterson and Campbell McCuaig.

GENTLE "BUTTERFLY" is roused to knife-wielding anger by the sinister "Goro" in this scene from opera "Madame Butterfly" premiere performance of which opened the 1960

VICTORIA BARITONE SCORES

Exquisite 'Butterfly' Opens Vancouver Festival

By AUDREY JOHNSON

VANCOUVER—The third season of the Vancouver International Festival opened Friday night at Queen Elizabeth Theatre with what is undoubtedly one of its most resounding and inspired successes to date.

Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly," in a beautifully-mounted production with an all-Canadian cast provided an evening of genuine glamor for a glittering first-night capacity audience.

As the curtain rose, a scene as ethereal as an old Japanese painting on silk instantly caught the audience up in an atmosphere that was constant and dream-like throughout.

It would be difficult to imagine a more authentic "Butterfly." The scenery and lighting designed by Gail Mc-

Cance of Vancouver's Theatre Under the Stars, the style of gesture and movement, technique of parol and fan, were exact in every detail.

Costumes were, of course, perfect, for they were made in Japan for this production, and their beauty was in the finest tradition of a uniquely artistic race.

In reviewing this production it seems to me necessary to comment—even before discussing individual performances—on the over-all effect. And for a very good reason, powerful voices were not always easy to hear and occasionally the orchestra became too dominant.

Nevertheless the musical interpretation under conductor Nicholas Goldschmidt, was sensitive, splendid and boldly dramatic in climactic moments, never failing in imaginative support and leadership.

Not soon to be forgotten was the effect of moonlight, dawn and sunrise over Butterfly's pathetic right-watch and the performance of charming little Timothy Zimich as her child.

Japanese Character Realized

Most performances of this opera previously seen have made the Japanese characters, their manners and mode of life seem fantastically artificial while the Americans, Pinkerton and Sharpless, appeared normal, right and understandable.

Under the direction of the Metropolitan Opera Company's Nathaniel Merrill, this effect was reversed as it should be.

In the ineffably lovely, graceful and courtly world of "Butterfly" Pinkerton and Sharpless seemed crass interlopers, blundering about among fragile verities they comprehended but dimly.

Musically this was no less a delight. Teresa Stratas, a tiny doll-like figure with a rich and glorious soprano which she uses with promising virtuosity, plus an obviously fiery temperament and capacity for feeling her role, took her audience by storm.

She revealed the lightness as well as the pathos, the charm and subtle seductiveness of Cio-Cio-San, but always with a porcelain delicacy.

Toronto's Pat Rideout was a deeply sympathetic Suzuki—maid and confidante to Butterfly. Her warm, beautifully colored voice has an impressive range, from contralto to mezzo. Blending of the two voices in duet numbers was quite thrilling.

Louis Quilico endowed the role of the American consul, Sharpless, with considerable depth and sincerity. Personally I liked him a great deal better in this than I did as Escamillo in "Carmen" last fall, even though his fine baritone was heard to somewhat less advantage.

John Dunbar Sparked First Act

One small disappointment must be recorded. For complete savoring of the opera's poignancy, Lieut. Pinkerton needs to be seen at least in part, as Butterfly sees him; a romantic, debonnaire hero. Otherwise he appears merely as an insensitive loud and one feels vaguely irritated over the exquisite Butterfly's imperfection.

Singing the role, Richard Verreau left little to be desired in vocal power and beauty.

Yet his acting was stodgy, his personality flat. He brought no life to the opening sequences and it was only with the entrance of Victoria's John Dunbar as Bonzo, the uncle-priest of Butterfly, that the first act sprang into full focus.

Dunbar not only sounded extremely well in the great theatre. His acting was electrifying in a part which Mr. Merrill describes as the most important and dramatic entrance in any opera in the modern repertoire.

Marking a change of mood that infects the entire balance of the opera there is need for strength here and the need was brilliantly met. The brief appearance was powerfully projected, intensely stylized and significant.

Admittedly some of the less

FREDERICK CHUBB... "a very clever man"

Local Work To Be Played

A composition by Victoria organist Frederick Chubb will be performed by famous Canadian organist Dr. Charles Peaker in a broadcast recital from Toronto, Sunday afternoon at 2 (P.T.).

Dr. Peaker will also be playing the work of one of Canada's most noted composers, Dr. Healey Willan, on the same program.

Admiration for Mr. Chubb's Adagio—the piece to be played—is a movement from a complete sonata—is expressed in a letter from Dr. Peaker to Mrs. W. B. Milburn of this city.

"I like Frederick Chubb's piece very much and so does Healey (Willan). The whole sonata is in ms. and I wish I had time to learn the rest of it—Sir Ernest (MacMillan) likes it too... The Adagio strikes me as... delicate and ethereal in texture. I am sure E.C. himself would never tell anyone—he's shy, but a very clever man."

A Way and a Wish For Joanie Sommers

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA)—It seems somewhat like gilding the lily, but Joanie Sommers has started to study singing. "I'm taking breathing lessons," she says, "but they're making me dizzy. If it doesn't start helping me soon, I'll give it up—it costs too much."

Joanie, at 19, has exactly 14 months of professional experience behind her. But already they're talking about her in the same breath as Sarah Vaughan and Ella Fitzgerald, the girl singers who have the greatest way with a pop song of this era. It's quite a compliment for one so young.

Then, too, Joanie has something else going for her. She's an exceptionally pretty thing, with soulful eyes and a smile that lights up as though it were electrified.

So she has all the natural resources a girl singer can use. And, what's equally important, she has ambition.

"I want to go up, up, up," she says. "I'm not specifically after money or fame; it's hard to explain. I just want to go up, up, up. I don't know where that will take me, but I'll go wherever it does."

When she says she's not interested in money, people who know her laugh. She has a tendency toward extravagance when it comes to clothes.

"I never had many," she says, "so I'm buying a lot now. There's so much that I Joanie Sommers need."

She also wants a house for herself and a car. She's independent and doesn't live with her parents. She and a friend have an apartment of their own.

But, the way things are going for Warner Brothers' bright new star, it looks as though she'll have her house soon—provided she doesn't buy all the clothes in the world first.

How can you tell if a youngster, studying the piano, should go in for classics or pop? Leave it to the child, says Bill Snyder.

Bill is Decca's brilliant pianist-arranger, whose latest album, "The Magic Touch," is just one of a parade of lovely background music releases. As a boy in Chicago he was a classical prodigy.

"I started at three," he says, "picking out melodies. They gave me lessons from the time I was four; I made my concert debut at six. From then until I was 12, I gave many concerts."

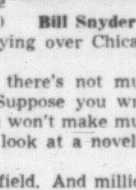

"But my pop leanings were always there. Once after an all-Bach program, they demanded an encore. So I played 'Dizzy Fingers'."

At 12, he quit the piano—"I felt it was silly because I couldn't play with the other kids and they shunned me"—but by 16 he'd regained his interest. Now, though, it was mostly all pop.

He had a dance band in high school (the guitarist was a kid named George Gobel) and while there, he made $125 a week playing over Chicago radio stations.

"I realized then," says Snyder, "that there's not much reward for creativity in classical music. Suppose you write a symphony—no matter how great it is, you won't make much money. Compare that to the other arts—look at a novelist, he'll make a fortune with one big seller."

So Snyder is concentrating on the pop field. And millions of people are delighted with his choice.

Adaskin Plans Music For Young Violinists

SASKATOON (CPI)—Young violin students are being short-changed in the type of music available to them, says Prof. Murray Adaskin, head of the University of Saskatchewan music department.

Composers rarely have the opportunity to do pieces especially for children because they are usually busy with other works.

"But I hope to produce something which will be more challenging and interesting than the present types of music available to young students of the violin."

The former Toronto musician would like to write "six to a dozen in the contemporary idiom."

But this is only one of the projects Prof. Adaskin has in mind as he embarks on a one-year leave of absence from the university.

A concerto for bassoon and orchestra he composed is slated for debut next March by the MASON JOINS CAST HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Versatile actor James Mason has been signed to portray the prosecuting counsel in "The Trial of Oscar Wilde," to be filmed in London.

To some of my name this year is known as "The Year of the Rat." But to many North American residents it will go down as "The Year of Mark Twain."

This year the spirit of the American writer and humorist is everywhere. During the spring months there was scarcely a television network that one could turn to without receiving a play or biography based upon the work and life of the great man. Now MGM's adaptation of "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" comes along. To my knowledge it is about the third or fourth remake of the classic.

Perhaps this inundation, is what makes the film difficult to cover. If one has read the story, rocked to the mirth of the lines and situations, shed burning tears at the lad's plight and fright then this latest version will come as a decided letdown.

On the other hand it should prove to be 107 minutes of reasonable happiness for 1960's child and his parents who haven't yet tackled Twain's touching works. Wrapped up in superb Metrocolor CinemaScope photography and staked out with handsome sets it makes a truly engrossing package.

THE IMMORTAL HUCK FINN as played by young Eddie Hodges should win the hearts of Finn's latest audience even though he may appear too sanitized, too cauterized and too antiseptic for the Huck of our youth who you could almost smell through the pages as he drank spunkwater, fondled toads, smoked rank corn-cobs and generally behaved as though he were sired by a water rat. World light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore turns in a surprisingly commendable job as Huck's friend, the slave Jim, who is running away in search of freedom in Illinois.

Others in the cast also lend an able hand—widow Josephine Hutchinson and her strait-laced sister Minerva Urecal from whom young Huck runs away rather than be raised as a sissy; Tony Randall as the "king of France" and his con-man sidekick, Mickey Shaughnessy; Neville Brand as Huck's hard-drinking, hard-swingin' father; circus owner Andy Devine and so on. It's just that somehow Huckleberry Finn turns out to be someone other than the kid we met when we were kids. Certainly there doesn't seem to be nearly as much laughter or general excitement as we remember.

Or perhaps it's just that we are getting old.

BEASTALL ADVISES

July-Becalmed Gardeners Should Check Up on Jobs

By JACK BEASTALL

No matter how conscientious we may be about our gardening, it takes but the faintest of excuses to lure us from routine work in the summer months.

A few warm days cause us to relax, and a dozen more jobs are added to the backlog already accumulated. Only concerted effort can bring us up to date by the end of the month.

As a guide to the work for July, here is a check-list taken from routine work in the summer months.

Any jobs which have not been completed should receive immediate attention.

Sow vegetables for fall use. Include bush beans, beet, chard, late celery, carrots, kale, kohlrabi, onions for salads and silver-skin for pickling, peas, parsley, early variety of potato, rutabaga, endive, Chinese cabbage, purple-top turnips. Use early varieties for quick maturing.

Keep pod crops well picked to prolong harvesting. Start the preserving of beans in brine for winter use. Transplant brassicas (cabbage family) to open garden, protecting against club root and root maggot.

Gather leaf herbs as plants come into flower, dry in open air but not in sunlight.

Train in new growths on cane and bramble fruits. Space strawberry runners for new plants, clean beds and dig up old beds.

MULCH SHRUBS

Finish the thinning of fruit crops (immediately), and start judicious summer pruning. Maintain a mulch over the root area of all trees and shrubs planted this spring, check ties and stakes, supply adequate water, and lightly sprinkle over the foliage on hot days.

Take time to check plants regularly for signs of pests or diseases. The thumb and finger as sufficient control in the early stages.

Last week of July is deadline for sowing perennials; aubrieta, aquilegia, anemone, English daisy, delphinium, border dianthus, Sweet William, lupin, pansy, viola, Iceland and Oriental poppies, primula, pyrethrum. Choose the newer hybrids where available.

Dig and divide three-year-old clumps of bearded iris after flowering.

CUT FLOWERS

To prolong the blooming time of annuals and perennials, remove flowers as they fade and pick plenty for use indoors.

Feed flowering plants to intensify color of blooms and increase substance of flowers and foliage.

Take cuttings of roses and shrubs; propagate pinks, aubrieta, arabis, other rock garden plants, and carnations.

Give feeding to peonies and water well to swell next year's growth buds. Continue the staking and tying of fall flowering perennials as the growth increases. Weed the rock garden, remove faded flowers, trim invasive plants which are spreading beyond bounds.

Take cuttings of greenhouse plants. Gloxinias out of bloom need less shade; expose gradually to more sun and continue watering until growth is completed.

Fully expose zonal pelargoniums to sun and air for winter bloom, remove all buds, pinch back straggly shoots.

LOOK AROUND

Remove cyclamens from pots, shake off old soil, re-pot and store in north facing cold frame. Pot up cuttings of fibrous rooted begonias. Liquid feed tuberous rooted begonias.

Visit the gardens of friends, seed farms, commercial gardens, plant nurseries, public parks and grounds, and the experimental farms. Make notes of interesting subjects; select plants for fall planting while they are in flower.

Mow lawns regularly with mower set for high cutting, feed with nitrogenous fertilizer if green is fading, water thoroughly and deeply.

Attend to watering, weeding and cultivating in beds, borders, shrubbery and vegetable garden.

Give berry fruits plenty of water while the fruits are swelling. Mulch the root area of raspberries to keep down weeds; never cultivate near raspberry roots.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. How can I prevent carrots and beets from being misshapen and small? Or is it the variety? J.C.R., Haultain St.

A. It would seem as though your vegetables were sown too thickly in the first place, and not thinned to give them sufficient room to grow into their true shapes. Rough, hard soil also contributes to poor shapes; it should be broken down fine and raked until no large lumps remain at sowing time. Cultivation and watering while the seedlings are growing will help keep the soil in condition.

Q. I neglected to prune the tomato plants. Is it too late now that fruits are forming? R.J., Cloverdale.

A. If you are growing the bush, or determinate varieties, no pruning should be done because the main crop of fruit is borne on the side branches. Should you not know the name or type, the manner of growth is some indication.

Determinate (bushy) varieties form the first fruit truss at the end of the main stem and then produce side branches which bear further trusses.

Staking varieties have fairly long spacing between the leaves and fruit trusses develop on the side of the main stem which continues to lengthen. Side growths are removed from this type unless they are grown "field style" and allowed to sprawl over the ground.

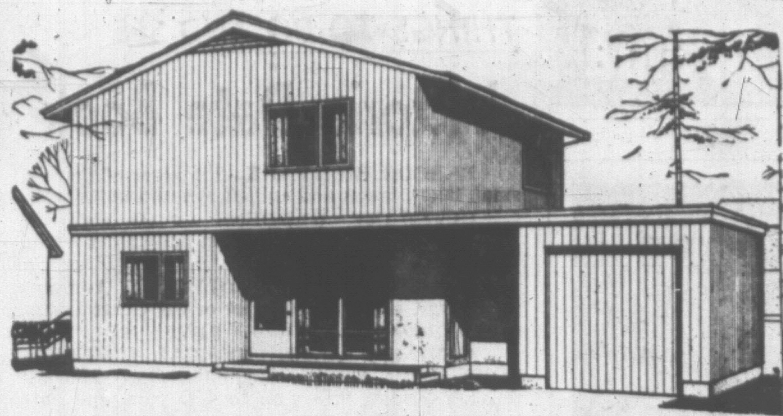

At this date, well-developed low branches could be left to form a three-stem plant, but further side shoots on the main stem and the developed branches should be removed.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q. Should the pilot light in our furnace be shut off during the summer?

A. As a rule, no. The light will prevent moisture from collecting inside the furnace.

Colors of walls are affected by lights and shadows. Because the wall area around windows is in shadow, it appears darker than walls on which light from the window falls. To compensate for this condition, paint window walls a lighter tint.

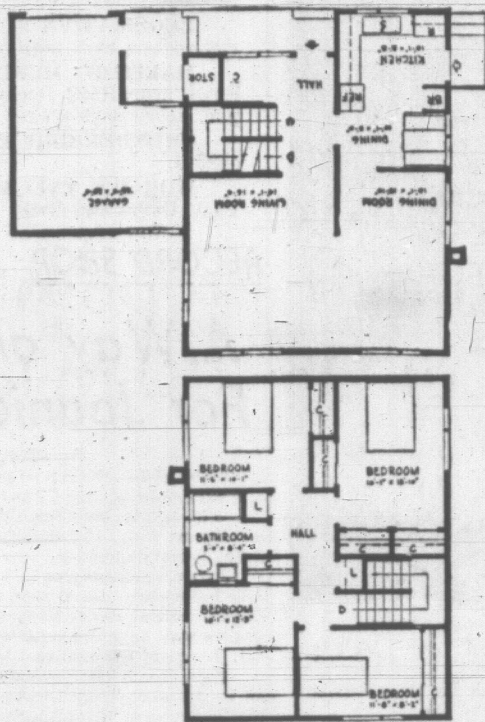

Economical Plan Provides For Large Family Living

For those requiring a large home, this two-story four-bedroom design by architect T. M. Kirkham of Vancouver, is worthy of consideration. The exterior appearance is enhanced by the attached garage and protected front entrance which modifies the height of the dwelling.

All four bedrooms are of generous dimensions and have ample closet space. Both the front and side entrances are handy to the kitchen, which includes a dining nook. There is a full basement containing space for storage, utility, heating and a reception room. A noteworthy feature for the man of the house is the well-lighted work area which forms part of the garage.

The total floor area is 1,582 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 42 feet by 32 feet, six inches. Working drawings for the house, known as Design 606, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

AROUND THE WORLD

Artichokes Out of Their Ears

PARIS — One of the great delicacies of France is the global artichoke, grown in the foggy farms of Brittany. Every spring French mouths water for the delicate, immature receptacles and artichoke bottoms, rich in iron, mineral salts and iodine. The artichoke is fed to babies and recommended for people with liver trouble, which means practically everyone in the country.

The only thing that has prevented more people from enjoying artichokes is the price. Artichokes are expensive. At least they used to be. But this year, for the first time, the French people had had artichokes coming out of their ears. And thereby hangs a tale.

For years the French artichoke farmers sold their artichokes to dealers for a half-cent a pound, but by the time they reached the local vegetable store they were sold for fifteen cents a pound. The farmers decided someone was getting rich at their expense.

This year the farmers demanded four cents a pound for their artichokes. France is a country of middlemen and middle middlemen and men with large middles, and they were the ones who said no.

So the farmers formed an Artichoke Committee and agreed among themselves they would not sell below the "four-cent figure." To keep the price up they burned 7,000 tons of artichokes, enough to cure every weakened liver in France.

But after they were burned, one of the committee members pointed out it was stupid to burn the artichokes. He pointed out that every artichoke burned was in effect a missile in the battle for the artichoke market. "We should be selling the artichokes to someone who has never tasted them before," he said. "Then he will become an artichoke lover and pretty soon we will have a whole new market for merchandise."

The committee saw the wisdom of this reasoning. "Why don't we sell the artichokes in Paris ourselves?" someone suggested.

This seemed like a brilliant idea at first, until cooler heads pointed out it would be costly, that they had no idea where to sell them, and besides no farmer in Saint-Pol-de-Leon, the artichoke capital, was quite sure how to get to Paris.

But at that very moment in Paris a M. Leclerc, the No. 1 enemy of the French middleman, who, by buying directly from manufacturers and farmers had established a chain of cut-rate markets throughout the country, moved in. The artichoke war was his war, and he sent one of his top lieutenants to Saint-Pol-de-Leon to make contact with the committee. In the meantime, he arranged to have the artichokes sold in Paris on strategic street corners under police protection. But M. Barrere, the Leclerc man, found he wasn't as welcome in Saint-Pol-de-Leon as he expected.

When he arrived he was surrounded by angry packers and shippers of artichokes who had had to close down because of the farmers' revolt. They hustled M. Barrere off to the railroad station to ship him back to Paris. But when they got to the station they discovered there was no train going back that day, so they stuck him in a car and drove him to Morlaix, the next town, to ship him back from there.

But the Morlaix police were not in sympathy with the packers and shippers, so they arrested everyone who had "kidnapped" M. Barrere.

Meanwhile, back in Paris, Mr. Leclerc announced in the press and on the radio that starting the next day, the Bretons would be selling 100 tons of artichokes a day in the streets of Paris for eight cents a kilo.

The sales were protected by the government, which is trying to keep food prices down, and by the police, who have a weakness for artichokes.

The middlemen decided to go on strike, but when they discovered no one cared if they did or not, they started putting out pamphlets which no one read. As the farmers became more successful, the grocers became more irritable and the other day several grocers started to bombard the Bretons with their own artichokes.

But the housewives, the police, and the Bretons fought back and in no time drove the grocers back to their stores, where they hid behind artichokes they couldn't sell. The Battle of the Artichokes is just about over now, only because the artichoke season is finished. The farmers won a clear-cut victory.

But the committee's strategy of finding new artichoke lovers in France may have backfired. Our ill-paid secretary, Ursula, who, during the height of the troubles was buying ten artichokes a day, just said to us yesterday: "If I serve my husband another artichoke he'll kill me."

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

See that all shrubs and trees, particularly those planted this year, have sufficient moisture at their roots. If in doubt, dig with shovel or trowel to approximate depth of root area and examine the soil for moisture content.

The true Autumn Crocuses and the Colchicums should be planted as soon as possible if you have them on hand or can find available supplies.

Prune and shape lavender bushes by cutting over with hedge shears. Do not cut into old wood.

Cyclamen corms for indoor flowering can be re-potted now.

Feed the fall flowering perennials. Reduce the number of stems if too crowded.

Liquid feed rhubarb to ensure good stalks for next year.

Polishes Simplify Upkeep

Recently-developed polishes for all wood surfaces simplify furniture care.

One of the new polishes, a white emulsion-type polish-cleanser, was developed for professional furniture refinishers. It is recommended for high gloss varnish, satin, oiled and even dull, modern finishes.

Homemakers are warned against the use of wax on furniture, since few homemakers wash furniture enough to coat it with wax. Waxing furniture works dirt into the surface and gradually clouds it.

The new polishes won't smear or leave sticky streaks. But the manufacturers still recommend changing polishing rags frequently to keep from spreading dust from the chair to another or one room to another. They also suggest using a small block of wood covered with a soft cloth to clean carved or lattice-detailed furniture rather than rubbing it by hand.

The fresh paint odor can be eliminated from a newly-painted room by slicing three or four onions into a bucket of cold water. Leave the bucket in the centre of the room for several hours.

Bonds Reach New Highs, Stocks Slump

By WILLIAM FERRIS

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market declined every day this week while United States government bonds moved to new highs for the year.

These were the outstanding developments in business and finance.

Business generally continued reasonably good, but not good enough to satisfy everyone. In many major industries, such as steel, operations were well below capacity.

Personal income, as reported by the commerce department, rose to a record high in June. Also at a record high that month was the cost-of-living, largely because of upturns in some food items.

Sizeable price decreases were reported in new cars, which means you can find a good buy in them now. This situation reflects heavy inventories. Prices of major home appliances declined for the fifth straight month.

The drop in the stock market was orderly, mainly representing a slow whittling away of values rather than any wild burst of hysterical selling.

Nevertheless, many blue chip stocks have suffered wide losses since last year's peaks.

Businessmen talked about intensified competition in all areas, including such recently romantic ones as electronics and missiles. Several companies reported record second-quarter sales, but were unable to translate this into record second-quarter income.

In other words, severe competitive conditions are making it difficult to carry good sales down to good profits.

BONDS POPULAR

Obviously, there is some financial hedging on the possibility of a significant slackening in business. This is reflected in the growing popularity of government bonds.

Some of the buying in bonds, according to informed sources, represents reinvestment of money taken out of the stock market.

Government bonds, a very stable security, can be purchased through brokers with as little cash payment as 10 per cent of the purchase price—a 10-per-cent margin, in other words.

The margin on stocks is 90 per cent, and brokers have been hoping the Federal Reserve Board would reduce it.

This upturn in bond prices means money is easier—there is less demand for it from business. Banks, insurance companies and other lenders seek places to put it, and a government bond is an obvious place.

Oil Import Quotas Urged by MP

OTTAWA (CP)—A government supporter suggested Friday night that Canada fix quotas on its imports of foreign crude oil.

Art Smith (PC, Calgary South) former oil company executive, said the government should "recognize the need" for quotas for the same reason that the U.S. has applied them—to encourage domestic oil production.

He told the Commons that he was not attempting to prejudice whatever policy declaration the government may make after a study of the Canadian oil-marketing situation.

Mr. Smith alluded to Trade Minister Churchill's recent announcement that following the current session of Parliament his department—aided by the national energy board—will begin a special oil-marketing study.

REFER TO REPORT

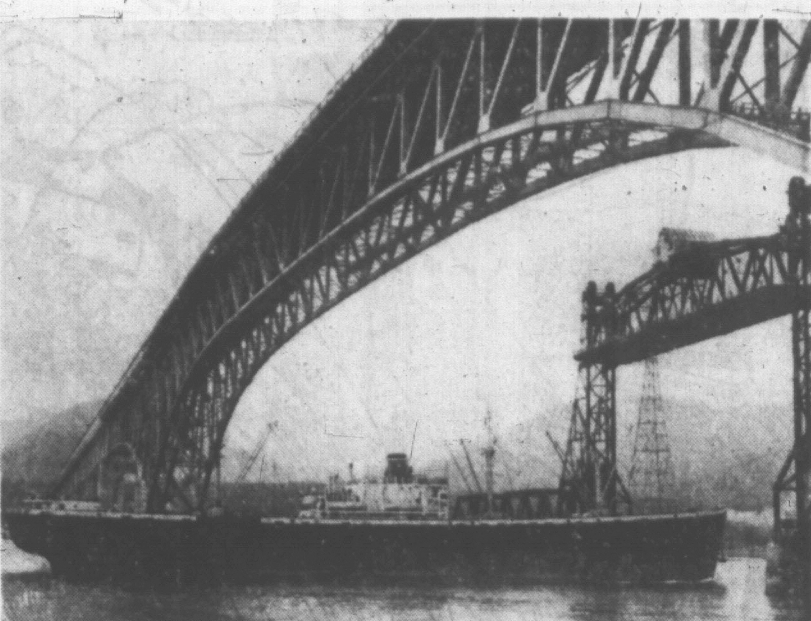

At the time, Mr. Churchill said the study would have reference to last year's report by the Borden energy commission, which recommended that the government give the international oil industry about 18 months to find room in North American markets for Canadian crude or face possible import restrictions.

Mr. Smith also asked the government to watch closely the effects of its recent oil and gas regulations on oil exploration and development in the Arctic islands and the mainland territories.

The regulations, as revised April 13, prevent foreign companies from obtaining oil and gas leases on federal Crown land and provide that Canadians must own at least half the issued shares in subsidiaries of foreign companies obtaining leases.

MORE WESTERLY PNR TERMINUS

Prince Rupert Proposal Would Cut Off 210 Miles

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—William H. Murray, Social Credit member of the B.C. Legislature for Prince Rupert, said Friday he told delegates to this week's B.C.-Alaska-Yukon conference the proposed Pacific Northern Railway will be 210 miles longer than necessary.

Mr. Murray made his submission in favor of a more westerly terminus of the proposed line to run from Summit Lake to the Yukon B.C. border at a closed session of the conference Wednesday in Victoria.

His brief supported city council's suggestion for a terminus at Hazelton, 100 miles northeast of here on the Canadian National Railway.

Preliminary work already has started on a terminus at Summit Lake, 30 miles north of Prince George on the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

HAZELTON BEST

The brief said distance along the proposed PNR route from Summit Lake to Babiche Hill 105 miles north of Hazelton, is 315 miles. A start at Hazelton would save 210 miles.

From Hazelton goods could be shipped here by the CNR line and from here to Vancouver and other ports by sea. This would mean a substantial saving in shipping charges for

ROAD LINK AGREEMENT BY OCTOBER

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—Governor William A. Egan said Friday a four-man committee of Alaska and British Columbia officials hope to reach agreement by October on the route of a proposed new road link.

Egan said he was very pleased over results of the meeting in Victoria of the Alaska International Development Commission and representatives of B.C. and the Yukon.

"Right now the committee is looking at the Stikine, Taku and Skagway route. We believe the Stikine to be the best route, one which would serve the best interests of both the state and province.

principal commodities of the area served by the line—minerals and wood products.

Mr. Murray said the city fully realized the immense benefits which would accrue to B.C., Alaska and the Yukon from construction of the proposed line.

"But we oppose strongly the route chosen by the railway until the merits of the suggestions we have made have been fully investigated.

HANDED TO COMMITTEE

The brief and another presented by Mr. Murray on a proposed "marine highway" to Alaska both were referred to a joint technical committee of the conference which has yet to be appointed.

The city of Prince Rupert recently withdrew a court action it started to block construction of the PNR until a hearing has been held by the B.C. Public Utilities Commission. The railway is backed by Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren.

Fish Catch Value Down Last Month

VANCOUVER (CP)—Despite the fact that salmon prices are higher, the value of British Columbia's fishing catch last month dropped 29 per cent from the same month last year.

A. J. Whitmore, director of the Pacific area of the department of fisheries, said halibut accounted for 48 per cent and salmon, 41 per cent of the take.

Mr. Whitmore said trawlers reported sharply reduced landings of both coho and spring salmon. Coho dropped from 1,500,000 pounds worth $432,000 in June, 1959, to 1,250,000 pounds worth $376,000 this year. Red spring is only 45 per cent of the 1,600,000 pounds of June, 1959.

Landing of halibut by Canadian fishermen at B.C. ports totalled 7,550,000 pounds, compared with 8,200,000 last year. U.S. fishermen reported an increased take.

Canadian Husky Oil Acquires U.S. Firm

CALGARY (CP)—Canadian Husky Oil Ltd. has announced it has acquired 87 per cent of the common stock of Husky Oil Company of Cody, Wyoming, through an exchange offer of eight common shares of Canadian Husky for each nine common shares of Husky.

Glenn E. Neilson, president of Canadian Husky, said Husky Oil now is a subsidiary of the Canadian company but that the offer to Husky shareholders will be extended until Sept. 25.

Where, Tell Me, Where Will the Big Salmon Be?

SPORTS

DOUG FEDEN, Sports Editor

Why Should Vancouver Get It All?

The Asot Jockey Club has asked the newly-created B.C. Racing Commission to cancel out Victoria's fall race meeting at Sandown Park and permit it to use the charter to extend the season at Exhibition Park in Vancouver.

What it means is the death-knell for thoroughbred racing on Vancouver Island—which was revived five years ago following a seven-year lapse due to lack of facilities.

A racing charter—with its accompanying rights to hold pari-mutuel wagering—is a privilege granted to private individuals by the legislature. Originally, charters were allotted on a regional basis and were limited as to the amount of racing so that curbs could be imposed on the length of the season in any one centre.

Have Habit of Becoming Permanent

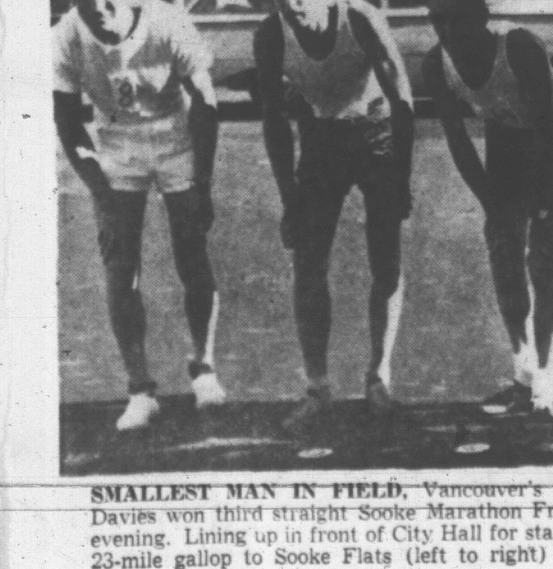

Slowly over the years, the entire thoroughbred racing is being channeled to Vancouver. Already one of the original charters for Victoria racing is the authority for part of the Exhibition Park meeting. If the second one is now transferred, the movement is complete.

Entitled to See Own Thoroughbreds

There are several thousand Victorians who enjoy the "sport of kings." They have supported racing with equal or greater enthusiasm than any segment of B.C.

Amiable Al Told Them Sox Would Get Rolling

By UP International

If anyone has the perfect right to say I-told-you-so, it's amiable Al Lopez of the surging Chicago White Sox.

Only a month ago everyone was counting his White Sox out because they were wallowing along in fifth place, 5 1/2 games behind the frontrunning Yankees.

Lopez insisted then the White Sox would still come to win. Few bothered to listen. It's a lot different to

Natural GOLF

Allow as much movement of the body as is necessary in making the putting stroke rhythmic and relaxed.

As indicated in the accompanying illustration, give the wrists and hands enough freedom to accomplish the stroke without encouraging any stiffness in any part of the body. The notion that good putting is the result of a kind of practised muscular paralysis is ridiculous. I never saw a putter who didn't permit himself all the movement necessary to free and easy stroking.

The eyes are riveted to the ball as a means of making sure the head does not move throughout the entire stroke.

A perfectly still head anchors the activity of the whole stroke and helps the body to easily maintain its perfect balance.

Titans Sign Dorow

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Dorow, quarterback for the Michigan State Rose Bowl team of 1954, signed Friday to play with New York Titans of the American Football League.

they did indicate that there is still life left in the team.

The Vets scored a single run in every inning of the eight-inning game against Eagles except for the fourth and fifth. They broke the pattern by plating three runs in the fourth and getting blanked in the fifth.

The "bits and pieces" approach gave them a much-appreciated 9-9 tie, and the chance to win the game when they finish it later in the season.

They had to work for it, and only on the strength of Darrell Lorimer's eighth-inning single were they able to claim the draw. With two out and Gary Lawrence on third, Lorimer banged a single into left field to tie the game.

Jim Moody then walked two men to load the bases but struck out Dennis Todd to end the tussle.

Eagles 000 432 00—9 10 8 Naval Vets 111 130 11—9 8 3 Barry Menzies, Jim Moody and Ron Prommer; Rod Fuller, Pat Rogers (4) and Mike Woodley.

Palmer, Hogan Discover Challenge Is No Myth

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Arnold Palmer will have to come from behind—as he did in the Masters and United States Open and didn't in the British Open—if he expects to win the $60,000 U.S. Professional Golfers' Association crown.

Proving that even the best can get the worst of it at times, the year's leading money-winner with more than $60,000 fell to a 74 in Friday's second round to surrender the lead his opening 67 had given him.

In front of the 72-hole event as 95 survivors went into today's third round was Jay Herbert, 37-year-old pro from Lafayette, La. He had five birdies and went over par on two holes to card the day's best round of 67. His two-day total was 139, one under par.

Palmer's unexpected collapse on the front nine left him in a three-way tie at 141 with three-time champion Sam Snead, who had a second-round 73, and Doug Sanders. Between them and the leader was Don January of Dallas, Tex., who had a pair of 70s.

90-DEGREE HEAT

Herbert fired his round early and let the others worry in the 90-degree temperature the rest of the day. Only Fred Hawkins was able to skip par in the late going over the wind-blown 7,615-yard Firestone Country Club course. Hawkins' 69 put him in a three-way deadlock at 142 with Ken Venturi and John O'Donnell.

CHALLENGE NO MYTH

The challenge of this mighty remake course is no myth. Ben Hogan, who seven years ago won the U.S. and British Opens and the Masters in a single year, hasn't scored a birdie in 36 holes here.

The 47-year-old veteran said: "I can't remember when that happened to me before. I don't believe it ever did."

Palmer had plenty of trouble. He was in traps or rough all through the front nine, hit a spectator with a tee shot, went two strokes over par on the third hole and one over on the fourth, sixth and ninth. He got back on the beam to match par on the last nine.

Bat-Thrower Fined

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Rookie first baseman Jim Gentile of Baltimore Orioles has been fined $100 by the American League for throwing a bat at umpire John Stevens in Chicago last Sunday.

O.C. CRICKET

LONDON (Reuters)—Results of Friday's cricket matches:

At Lords: London: Match abandoned, rain. Middlesex 126 and 285 for 4 declared. Essex 215. Essex 4 points.

At Maidstone: Draw. Somerset 238 and 200 for 3. Kent 200 and 80 for 2—Somerset 3 points.

At Bradford: Draw. Yorkshire 282. Hampshire 113. Yorkshire 4 points.

At Nottingham: Lancashire beat Nottinghamshire by 8 wickets. Nottinghamshire 179 and 188. Lancashire 323 and 41 for 2. Lancashire 14 points.

At the Oval, London: Match abandoned, rain. Derbyshire 148 and 195 and 6 declared. Surrey 81 and 87 for no wicket. Derbyshire 4 points.

At Birmingham: Draw. Warwickshire 333 for 7 declared and 148 for 6 declared. Gloucestershire 293 and 52 for no wicket. Warwick 4 points.

Arroyo Joins Yankees

Altered Tickets Cost Track $200

TORONTO (CP)—About $200 was paid out on altered losing tickets at Old Woodbine harness races last week, the Ontario Jockey Club disclosed. The numbers were removed with ink eradicator and the winning number written in.

Solution of Last Week's Puzzle

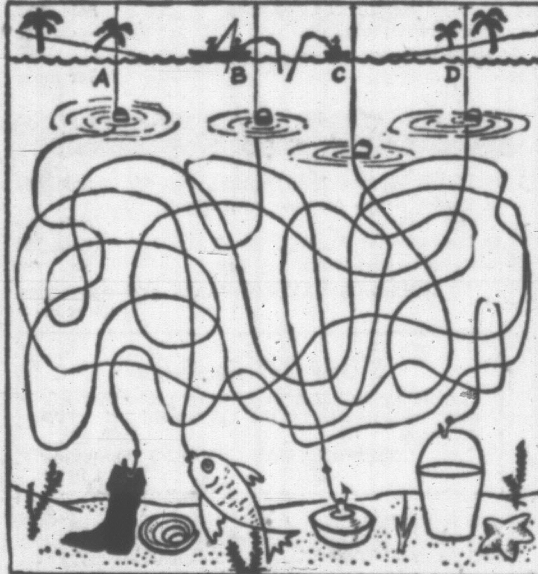

Dotograph for Junior Readers

Nancy above, has baked a cake for her brother Bill's birthday party. But before anyone can partake of Nancy's cake, something else must be added to the scene. See if you can guess what's missing; then add lines from dot to dot numerically. That is, begin at dot nd1 and draw to dot 2, dot 3, etc., until you have touched all of the numbers. Where two numbers are beside on dot, use dot twice.

Take Care, or You'll Empty the Lake

Fishing is lots of fun in Lake Quagmire, right, because

HIDDEN PLACES

A well-known geographical name is hidden in each of the following sentences. It may be found by joining two or more consecutive words or parts of words. A river, a country, a city and an ocean are involved in that order.

1. When the speaker began gesticulating the audience roared with laughter.
2. "How can a dame like Marge expect any man to want to marry her?" Joe remarked.
3. "As scot" as I eat my fill, I'm a contented person," Mary confided.
4. With each electric arc, ticks emanated from the computing machine.

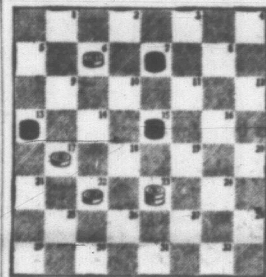

no one goes home empty-handed. As you can see, one man has hooked a fish, and all lines have latched on to something.

But there is a hazard here with which every fisherman contends. It seems there's a hole in the bottom of the lake, and in this hole there's a rather large plug. Should this plug be withdrawn, well-plans have already been drawn for dividing the area into building lots.

Obviously, one of the lines is hooked onto the fateful plug. Three of the lines, however, may be safely withdrawn. How quickly can you "reel in" these three "safe" lines?

You must trace through the tangles, from top to bottom, and not vice versa, of course. Remember, only three of the lines are to be withdrawn.

IT'S YOUR MOVE

Millard Hopper, long-time open checker king, sees White through to victory in four moves above.

It's White's turn, moving up the board.

FIND WHAT'S WHAT FOR AMUSEMENT

1. What persons are hardest to convince they are of retirement age?
2. What trees remain the same when burned?
3. What's always coldest in a theatre?
4. What is it we often return yet never borrow?
5. Joe Tundra claims he walked three miles on the same snowflake. How come?
6. What's the likeliest thing you'll get on the cuff -- in a beanyery?

CRYPTO-QUOTE

There is wisdom in this substitution cryptogram, which you can read by working out the correct alphabetical key: BL KGBJ GO PCNL'EMCFH LNMWBGYRJ PCWP GO JR DGAGRP GB W ORBOR LD CEKLEN.

ADD PLUS AND MINUS

Place two plus and two minus signs in the row of figures below so that the total given is correct:
9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 = 621

A MATCHED SET OF TRICKS

Got a match? Usually an adult in the crowd carries a book or two. Thus, a surefire source of entertainment is nearly always at hand. Match tricks or puzzles, of course, are a never failing source of amusement. Here are two to try on your friends. One is designed to follow the other.

1. Arrange 24 matches so that they form nine squares (three squares vertically and three horizontally). Now ask your friend to take away eight matches and leave two squares. The solution is shown above.
2. Now that the solution to poser 1 has been found, ask the friend to take two of the removed matches and form a bridge from one square to the other, without moving the squares. A bridge, of course, must be firmly supported. The answer to this half of the puzzle is also shown.

THE HIKERS

A group of hikers set out for a destination 72 miles distant. Stops were decided on at certain distances along the way for refreshments and rest. Just to make things interesting, the leader stated the distance of six of the stops from the starting point as follows:

1. The middle third of the last half of the hike.
2. The last third of the first half of the last half of the trip.
3. The first third of the second third of the first half of the total distance.
4. The last third of the first half of the first half of the trip.
5. The middle third of the first half of the last quarter of the hike.
6. The first quarter of the second half of the last third of the trip.

How far was each of the six stops from the starting point?

Answers: The distance of the first stop from the starting point was 12 miles. The distance of the second stop from the starting point was 24 miles. The distance of the third stop from the starting point was 36 miles. The distance of the fourth stop from the starting point was 48 miles. The distance of the fifth stop from the starting point was 60 miles. The distance of the sixth stop from the starting point was 72 miles.

GIRLS AFLOAT AND ASHORE SHOW WAY TO SUMMER FUN IN VICTORIA

Holiday season has been glorious here, and both local and visiting girls know how to make most of clear skies, balmy air, and heady whiff of freedom from school. At left, for instance, sprouts taking part in busy Oak Bay playground program splashed up a spray today at Crystal Garden in morning swimming session. Girls at right are six of 15 learning rudiments of sailing and small-boat handling at classes being given at Royal Victoria Yacht Club. Practicing their knots and splices are,

Barbara Bird, 15, one of her charges. Groups work three years to raise money for trip, and this is fourth venture to B.C. made by Oakland Rangers. (Photos for Times by Bill Halkett and Irving Strickland.)

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JULY 23, 1960—PAGE 17

MONTE ROBERTS

I have a lady in the balcony, doctor, and she has a problem.

Viz:
"Dear Mr. Roberts.
"I enjoy your witty column very much in the Times, and have been wondering if you could say a few words sometime, and add a few suggestions as to what could take the place of the usual potato salad for picnics.
"In our family it's gotten to the point where my husband says 'what again?' every time I make one.
"At Sandy Beach at Bamberton on Sunday, there were about 2,000 families and I would like to bet there were also 2,000 potato salads.
Sincerely,
Mrs. T. R. Barbour."

579 Baxter Avenue.

Thank you for the adjective "witty," Mrs. Barbour, but the thought of 2,000 potato salads (or should that be potatoes salad?) "drives me half out of my half wits, making me a quarter wit and no fit person to advise on proper picnic procedure.

In fact, even under the best of circumstances, I am not much of an authority on picnics.

I haven't been on a picnic for years. The last time, the bottle opener fell down the well and we all like to starve to death.

It was a frightening experience, and I have avoided picnics ever since.

But any constituent of mine who has a problem will get my very best attention.

In this case, my very best attention is to appeal to other picnic-minded constituents to rush to Mrs. Barbour's aid.

All reasonable suggestions will be given the most careful consideration and examination. (Postcards or letters, please: no phone calls.)

The most promising, I will personally take, if one of them is really wonderful, I may even take it on a picnic.

Although I must admit, picnics are strictly for the aunts, and I'm an uncle.

May, June Bleak For Labor

May and June were bleak months for labor in B.C.

The monthly bulletin prepared by the B.C. Trade and Commerce Department said 1,000 more people were out of work than the previous month.

The total unemployed June 18 was 42,000 and the total work force of 532,000 was 16,000 less than in June 18, 1959.

But the employed shared an income 5.1 per cent higher than April, 1959, bringing the four-month total to 6.2 per cent above the same period one year ago.

Retail sales in May, a good barometer of activity, recorded an 8.4 per cent drop from the previous May. During the first four months most stores were consistently above 1959 figures. The May drop brought the five-month level 2.5 per cent below the 1959 pace.

On the bright side, lumber exports to the United Kingdom shot ahead 73 per cent during the first quarter of 1960 with 111,600,000 board feet exported.

Annual Outing

Members of the Pioneer Sixty-Up Club will hold their annual outing at Cordova Bay Wednesday.

Buses will leave the B.C. Electric Depot, Blanshard and Pandora, at 2 p.m. and will leave Cordova Bay at 6 p.m. on return trip.

GOVERNOR BROWN
California visitor.

GOVERNOR:

'Religion No Factor In Election'

Not 5 per cent of the U.S. voting population will be influenced by religious denomination when they cast their ballots in the November presidential election.

So says California Governor "Pat" Brown, a Roman Catholic who is backing John Kennedy, another Roman Catholic, the Democratic nominee.

Governor Brown, who arrived on the Island Friday and will leave again Monday, said: "There are some narrow-minded people on both sides of the fence."

Governor Brown is holidaying with his wife on Goudie Island, opposite Canoe Cove.

He was attorney-general of California from 1951-58 before being elected governor, and has been a delegate to the Democratic convention on five occasions—the last time in the convention which chose Mr. Kennedy as the Democratic choice for the presidency.

On the so-called religious issue he said he had supported Kennedy this trip, and Adlai Stevenson the last time. Mr. Stevenson is a Protestant.

Third Generation Pendray to Head Paint Company

W. Allan Pendray, former vice-president and general manager of British America Paint Co. Ltd., old-established local firm, has been appointed president.

The announcement was made Friday by his father, J. Carl Pendray who leaves his position as president but retains his position as board chairman.

Son of the original founder of Bapco, largest paint manufacturing company west of Toronto, Carl Pendray has been semi-retired for some time.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is it necessary or customary to take gifts to an "at home" in celebration of a golden wedding? H.W.D.

A.—It is not necessary but it is customary to mark the occasion by either sending a suitable card a few days ahead, or sending or taking flowers or a gift. After 50 years most couples have the essentials for home living, so a small, personalized gift is more highly prized.

Q. Would you please tell me who has the three highest batting averages in major league baseball? J.O.

A. Highest lifetime batting averages are Ty Cobb (24 years), .367; Rogers Hornsby (23 years), .358, and Joe Jackson (18 years), .356.

Highest one-season averages were: Hugh Duffy (1897), .438; Willie Keeler (1897), .432, and Rogers Hornsby (1924), .424.

BOOKIE FINED

Policeman Lost Bet, Won Case

A plainclothes policeman who gambled on a horse race in a Victoria tobacconist's lost his bet but won his case in city police court today.

In the second case involving bookmakers here in the last two days, William H. Madson was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to a charge that he allowed his premises at St. James Cigar Store, 630 Johnson, to be used for recording bets.

Cons. John Adams said he entered the store wearing plain clothes at 1:10 p.m. Thursday and placed a $2 bet with the accused on Private Line, a horse running at Hollywood Park that day.

Ten minutes later, Const. Adams said, he was back at the store with Sgt. John Perry and the two of them searched the store for paraphernalia.

GREEN SHEETS

He brought to court a tally sheet, bearing his initials, green sheets and white sheets with lists of horses and races, which were to be confiscated.

Counsel Edmund St. Jorre said his client was impressed by the action against him.

"There can be no misunderstanding on these matters," Magistrate William Ostler said. "It is common ground that this activity is forbidden, not only in Victoria, but anywhere in Canada."

The constable's choice was entered in the first race of the day at Hollywood. It ran with such stalwarts as Noble Effort and Warm Farewell.

Sacred Picnic

The Victoria Social Credit League will hold its annual picnic on Aug. 6 aboard one of the new government ferries operating between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen.

They will meet at the Monterey Restaurant and between 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. travel in a car cavalcade to Swartz Bay. Some cabinet ministers will attend the picnic.

Picknickers will have lunch aboard the ferry.

ONE MAN HURT AS FIRE RAZES SEATTLE BOAT

A Seattle pleasure boat with six persons aboard was destroyed by fire Friday following an explosion of unknown cause at Bull Harbor, on the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

A man identified only as C. L. Smith was slightly injured and was flown to hospital at Alert Bay, 30 miles from Bull Harbor. The others escaped unhurt.

The explosion occurred when the craft Elphileon, owned by H. D. Fowler of Seattle, was anchored in the harbor. The boat burned to its water line and was described as a total loss.

Ottawa Widens Winter Job Plan

Three Leaders Happy But Saanich Cautious

Victoria municipal leaders today welcomed an Ottawa announcement that the federal government is planning a major expansion in the types of winter work projects qualifying for financial aid.

Mayor Percy Scurrell, Reeve A. C. Wurtele, of Esquimalt, and Reeve George Murdoch, of Oak Bay, all welcomed this latest government proposal.

Saanich Reeve George Chatterton, however, cautioned the statement needed qualification before he accepted it as any great benefit.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons the government's policy in the past two winters of paying half the labor costs of certain municipal projects would this year be extended to include these additional works:

Construction and major reconstruction, alteration or renovation of municipal buildings—except schools and hospitals—with a top federal contribution to labor costs of $50,000.

Street lights, traffic lights, parking areas, sewage treatment plants, pumping stations and water towers.

proposed sports centre at Esquimalt will qualify?"

Reeve Murdoch said there were a number of items in the offering for Oak Bay's winter works program he thought would qualify for federal assistance.

"It's a wonderful thing," he said. "The provincial government already pays 25 per cent of the costs and with 50 per cent coming from the federal government that leaves the municipalities to find only 25 per cent."

Cost May Outweigh Benefits—Reeve

The relative benefits of the government's move depended on the definition of labor costs, said Reeve Chatterton.

"Up to now the grants have only been applicable to the cost of direct labor, which in the majority of those projects is relatively small—about 15 per cent to 20 per cent."

"If the government is going to stick to this policy then the cost of machinery and materials will still outbalance any benefits the move might imply."

Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons the incentive program, together with the promotional campaign to have work done during winter months and the recently announced plan to stimulate home construction in the winter months "will make a substantial impact" on winter employment.

Labor Minister Starr also announced the government will increase to 75 per cent from 50 per cent its share of costs in the federal-provincial program to provide skilled training for unemployed workers.

The increase would take effect when the number of average annual man-days of training in provincial vocational schools reaches a certain percentage of the adult population, Mr. Starr did not say what this percentage would be.

He hoped the increased federal contribution would stimulate provincial training plans.

California Funeral

Funeral was held recently in Los Gatos, Calif., for Miss Gertrude M. Smith, 77, educated in Victoria, who made many friends during subsequent visits.

She was the youngest daughter of Capt. Henry Smith, former Victoria harbormaster and a founder of Port Angeles.

LONG-LASTING 'COLD VIRUS' SWEEPS CITY

A "cold virus" is flourishing in Greater Victoria this summer.

Hundreds of adults and children of all ages have been hit. There is no indication the epidemic is on the wane.

"I have sold more medicine this summer than I did all last winter," said one pharmacist. "Some people just don't seem to be able to get rid of it. The cold keeps coming back."

Physicians said the cold virus affects the nose, throat and chest. In some cases people have been laid up with fever.

Ruling Delay On Transfer Of Race Meet

The B.C. Racing Commission has delayed until "sometime next month" its decision on whether the fall horse racing scheduled for Sandown Park, near Sidney, may be transferred to Exhibition Park at Vancouver.

Ken McConnell, commission secretary, made the announcement. Earlier it was suggested a decision would be made in a few days.

The delay will provide an opportunity for registering of objections. Already James Eaton, Craigmyle Motel manager, near Sidney, has said he will protest the switch because of the business loss to the area.

The application for transfer was made by Ascot Jockey Club which operates both the Exhibition Park and Sandown meetings.

Funeral Monday For Woman, 99

Funeral will be held here Monday for Mrs. Emma H. Small, who died Friday, aged 99.

She was a resident of Victoria 70 years. Her address was 964 Caledonia.

Survivors include two daughters, Freda and Jean.

Funeral will be at 10:15 a.m. from McCall's, with interment in Colwood Pioneer Cemetery.

SHIPS OF TWO NATIONS IN SHOW

Big Navy Sendoff for PNE

Esquimalt-based ships of the RCN will dominate a two-nation task force of 13 vessels in Vancouver harbor for the 1960 Pacific National Exhibition.

The eight Canadian vessels will assist in the celebrations which mark the 50th anniversary of the PNE as well as the navy. They will steam in "line ahead" Friday, Aug. 19, the night before the opening of the Aug. 20-Sept. 5 PNE.

The ships are: Canadian—Destroyer escorts HMCS Ottawa and Saguenay; frigates, HMCS Sussexvale and St. Therese, and minesweepers, HMCS Fortune, Cowichan, Miramichi, and James Bay.

U.S.—Minesweepers Pledge, Acme, Conquest, Esteem and Gallant.

Men of the ships' companies will participate in the big downtown parade Saturday, Aug. 20, along with the band of HMCS Naden. A total of about 1,400 navymen will be in Vancouver.

Some of the ships will be open to the public until the force leaves Aug. 23. The Naden band will join with other service bands to present outdoor musical concerts during the fair.

The crack RCN ceremonial guard will carry out a traditional "Sunset Ceremony" for fairgoers, and a drum-head church service will also be held.

WORLD REFUGEE FUND FELL SHORT IN CITY

Approximately $23,000 was received in the World Refugee Fund campaign in Victoria, the chairman, Dr. Hugh Keenleyside said today.

While this amount was "considerably less" than hoped for, "it compares not too unfavorably with what was done elsewhere in Canada," he said.

Apart from the $23,000, local churches and other organizations contributed an additional $40,000 for an over-all total of $63,000, he said.

The campaign was held in connection with World Refugee Year.

Generosity of Victoria will pay "good dividends" in satisfaction that comes from relief of human suffering, the chairman added.

BIBLICAL HISTORY

'Manuscripts Of Mystery' Spark Study

LONDON (Reuters)—Perhaps it is the mystery which still surrounds the Dead Sea scrolls and the Coptic manuscripts recovered from the sands of Upper Egypt that whets so much public interest in them.

Both sets of documents were discovered gradually, and, as it were, accidentally. There was none of the blaze of publicity about their uncovering which often attends the discovery of major relics at a new archaeological site.

Although more has been heard of Dead Sea scrolls and their contents, the 50 or so Coptic manuscripts found in Egypt would appear to be at least equally important.

Like the Dead Sea scrolls, many of these documents are still being, or have yet to be, examined. The work is long and tedious, often entailing the fitting together of fragments of manuscript like a jigsaw puzzle.

While the full official story of the Coptic documents has yet to be told, unofficial disclosures have given glimpses of their contents.

One, in particular, has caught the public imagination—that claimed to be a Fifth Gospel—the Gospel according to Thomas.

Fifth Gospel 'According to Thomas'?

This claim, together with a complete survey of the circumstances of the discovery of the documents, the philosophy of the Gnostic sects and an appraisal of the significance of the manuscripts to scholars and our knowledge of the ancient world, is the subject of a study by the French Egyptologist, Jean Doresse, the only surviving witness of the events which led to the discovery of the papyrus.

The book, published now in English translation under the title The Secret Books of the Egyptian Gnostics (Hollis and Carter, London), tells for the first time the full story of the discovery of the manuscripts and includes an English translation and critical evaluation of "the Gospel according to Thomas."

The author describes the texts as "far more revealing and perhaps also of greater historic consequence than those from the Judean desert."

But, he adds, "as soon as it becomes possible to make an exhaustive study of the 50 or so Gnostic documents lately recovered from the sands of Egypt and when the Qumran (Dead Sea) scrolls have yielded their last secret, we may even discover a more or less tenuous relation between the histories of the two religious movements to which these two finds of manuscripts belonged: the existence of such a link may enhance the interest of both."

PORTABLE CHURCH GOES WHEREVER THERE'S NEED

COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP)—A portable church that can be shifted from one community to another as the need arises has been constructed in this fast-growing Vancouver suburb.

Carpenters, plumbers and electricians donated their spare time to the building of the church.

Coquitlam Mission is a co-operative venture of Baptist churches in the Vancouver area. It has room for a congregation of about 80 and basement accommodation for meetings and Sunday school classes.

It is designed so that when it has served its fill-in purpose and been replaced by a full-sized, permanent church, it can be moved intact to another building suburban area.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Carpenter, both students for the ministry then, organized the project as part of their training. Mr. Carpenter now is its pastor.

Vocational Training Centres to Expand

Further expansion of provincial vocational training facilities in British Columbia was announced Friday by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

He said tenders will be called for construction of a new B.C. vocational school at Prince George.

"Prince George is in a strategic position in our province, almost in its exact centre," Mr. Peterson said. "As B.C. develops, it is certain Prince George will become one of our major cities."

The minister said the necessary clearing will be done this summer and construction will start on the first workshop to house the heavy-duty mechanics (diesel and gas) and the automotive repair training programs.

Vocational training will soon be available to people close at hand in central B.C. and the Peace River area.

Catholic Summer School Ends

Catholic children's summer school has just been completed, sponsored by the Catholic Women's League on Salt Spring Island.

Father Mudge, Sidney, was a director, and he was assisted by W. Kennedy, seminarian, and Miss M. Harris, both of Nanaimo.

Teaching were: Mrs. F. Bonar, Mrs. Alex Marcotte, Mrs. Bob Marcotte and Mrs. L. Landman.

Taking part in their first Holy Communion were the following students who completed the course: Cherrie Horel, Glennis Horel, Darleen Byron, Dorothy Kitchen, Jessica Crowther, Susan Phillips, Marcelle Marcotte, David Roland, Danny Taylor, Kenneth Byron, Daryl Byron, Norman Patchett, Leon Lloyd-Walters, and Terry Martinich of North Pender Island.

Thirteen students won prizes in local competitions, and several were successful competing with Sidney and Saanich parish children.

These were: Barry Marcotte, first in intermediate grade; Darleen Marcotte and Kathy Akerman, who tied first in lower intermediate; and Darleen Byron who came second in primary class.

Children enjoyed a picnic at Caldwell's Beach, Walkers Hook, where they played games, had races and went boating.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

Church Trouble In the Congo

Problems of the church in the Congo will be the subject of a sermon by Rev. Canon R. E. H. Howell at Mattins Sunday in Christ Church Cathedral.

Canon Howell is expected to refer to an article by Rev. John V. Taylor in a recent issue of the "Anglican World."

Under the title, "Africa," Rev. Taylor discusses the future of Christianity on the basis of his experience as secretary of the Church Missionary Society, former resident at the Bishop Tucker Memorial College in Mukono, and former Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Uganda.

Guest preacher at First United Church for both morning and evening services Sunday will be Dr. D. L. David Cowie of the University Presbyterian Church, Seattle.

Soloist at both services will be Lois Fraser and she will be accompanied by organist William McNeill.

Professor of church history at Knox College, Toronto, Allan L. Harris will conduct morning and evening worship Sunday at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The service of praise will be directed by C. C. Warren and the quartet will be composed of Margaret Dixon, soprano; Mary Youson, alto; Robert Husband, tenor; and John Bray, bass.

Soloist in the morning will be Margaret Dixon and Mary Youson will sing at evening service.

Honorary Doctorates
OXFORD, England (Reuters)—Honorary doctor of science degrees were awarded to five scientists at a ceremony Thursday celebrating the 300th anniversary of the British Royal Society. Among those honored was E. W. R. Steacie, president of Canada's National Research Council.

Religious Issue Flares Over Boy
WINNIPEG (CP) — The Protestant foster parents of a Roman Catholic child Friday opposed a move by the Children's Aid Society to place the five-year-old boy with a Roman Catholic couple who want to adopt him.
Deadline for the move for five-year-old Bobby was Friday, but neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hallas have started petitions to stop his removal from the Hallas home. The little boy has lived with the Hallas family since he was nine months old.
Mr. and Mrs. Hallas have offered to give the boy a Roman Catholic upbringing.
Henry Rogers, executive director of the Children's Aid Society, said: "We have a shortage of Roman Catholic

Victoria Daily Times SAT., JULY 23, 1960 19

With summer temperatures rising in Edmonton, Mrs. A. Hoadley Mitchell and her three young sons, David, 16, seated at the steering wheel of the family speed boat; Bruce, 14, standing behind his brother; Johnny, seven and the family poodle, Pepsi, are only too happy to spend their holidays at Shawnigan Lake. Family is staying at the summer home of Mrs. Mitchell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Horton. Mr. Mitchell will come from Alberta in August to join them.

Shawnigan Lake Summer!

Tennis, swimming or simply relaxing—the Edgelow family find there is an interest for each one at the holiday resort of their choice, Shawnigan Beach Hotel. Victoria Alderman Geoffrey Edgelow is ready for a set or two of tennis while his wife sits back and enjoys the sun. Their son Peter is going for a swim in the 'warm as soup' waters of the lake.

Three in a boat are the happy, healthy children of Dr. Vincent Smith and Mrs. Smith of Victoria. At left is Barbara, 10, rowing the boat is Jill, 15, and waving a "hi" is seven-year-old Willy. The children are spending summer days at the Smiths' family cottage.

Spending a day at Shawnigan Beach Hotel is this charming Victoria family, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Flett with their daughters, Christine, 16, centre-left, and Beatrice, 15. The Fletts sit on the sun-bathed terrace to sip cool glasses of orangeade and lime.

In the summertime, many Victorians close their city homes and move families and animals 28 miles out of Victoria to dream paradise—Shawnigan Lake. There on the 21-mile long shore-line they settle into cottages or at resorts to spend anywhere from a weekend to two months relaxing and enjoying the summer.

For many, the cabin they occupy has been in their family for years. For others, the building of a new cottage on that cherished property is the project. Many spend the holidays at one of the resort hotels.

No matter where they are, there is activity for any age. Water sports are the most popular with skiing, swimming and boating taking the fore.

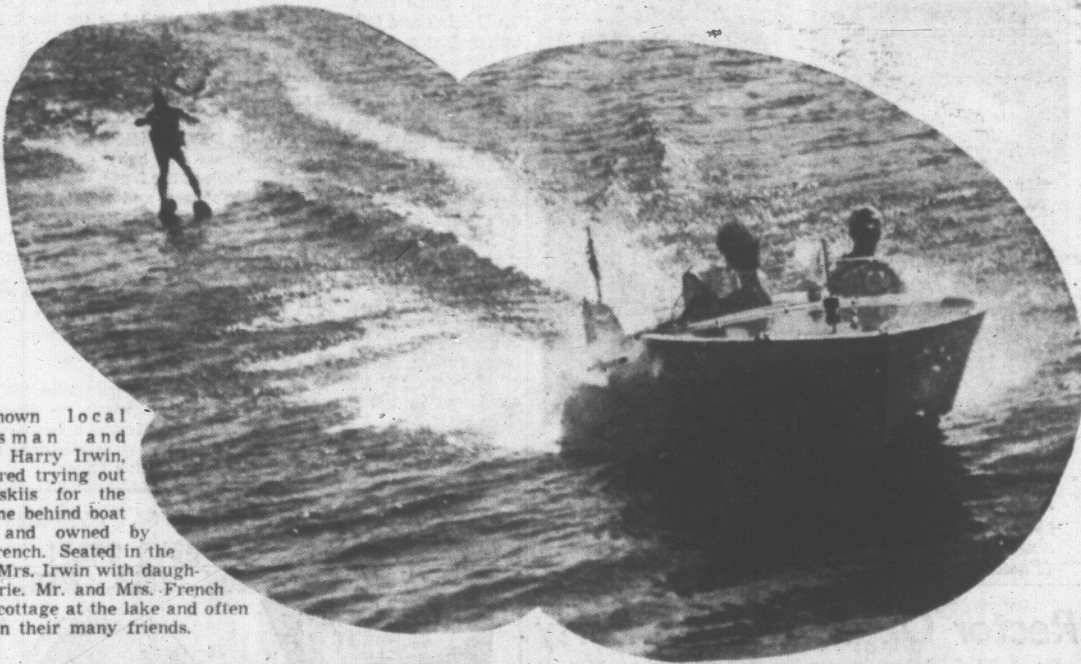

For others so inclined, there are tennis courts and even lawns where they can enjoy a game of croquet. For all, Shawnigan Lake is a place to relax and soak up the sun.

Shawnigan Lake is a wonderful spot for family get-togethers. Mrs. F. L. McInnis, Victoria, centre, is presently enjoying a reunion with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Coates, Toronto, and her two children, Bruce, three and Janet, two. Family is staying at Shawnaire Resort for three weeks. "This is the life!" says Mrs. McInnis.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Pets Appreciate Relief Given by These Sprays

By PENNY SAVER

Owners of pets will want to take advantage of "specials" in one downtown store on sprays and powders for getting rid of fleas and ticks that plague dogs and cats during the summer months. Spray for dogs that usually costs $1.29 is now selling at $1.15 for a six-ounce can. Used regularly on your pet and sprayed around the kennel, you'll find that pests will disappear and your pet will be able to enjoy life again.

Sprays for cats sell at 85 cents for a four-ounce can. Normal price is 98 cents. If you prefer to use powder, a two-ounce container sells for 42 cents instead of the regular 49 cents.

Another aid for pet owners is dog and cat repellent. If you have trouble keeping Fido off the living room chandelier or are wondering how long it will take to train a kitten to stop clawing your favorite chair, this will help. Just spray on a piece of paper or material, wait for it to dry and then pin to the furniture needing protection. Whatever you do, don't spray directly on to upholstery—it will stain! Can containing 14 ounces is now priced at $1.59 instead of normal price of $1.79.

Do you find gloves difficult to work with, especially when you're tugging at a particularly stubborn crop of weeds?

Some, like the ones I've seen on sale this week, have specially treated palms that are designed to overcome this handicap. These gloves, reduced from 69 cents to 39 cents, come in either thin green and white check or blue and white check. Palms are rubberized to prevent slipping and are in matching pin dot design. All have close fitting knitted cuffs.

If you would like to know where Penny shopped today give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Even Though Underweight You Still Need Exercise

Since exercise is helpful in a reducing routine, many women who wish to gain weight think that it's not for them. Actually, exercise is a normalizer. In my opinion it is very important for the underweight person. It stimulates circulation, increases appetite, builds muscle tone, decreases nervous tension and induces sound sleep. Muscle development also rounds out curves.

The underweight girl or woman should not take strenuous exercise and she should stop long before she is tired. Address Josephine Lowman in Swimming and walking are two of the best exercises for her. Setting up exercises are splendid if they are of the stretching type or are done in a lazy, "rag doll" fashion. Here is one for you: Stand tall, feet separated and arms hanging at your sides. Bend the trunk forward, letting the arms and head flop downward. Raise the trunk, lower the head backward and raise the arms side-ward, shoulder height. Again let the trunk, head and arms flop downward. Continue. Do this is a lazy manner.

If you have this problem and would like to have my corrective exercises, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 7, stop long before she is tired. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lidstone, 1197 Clovelly Terrace, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Beverly-Phyllis, to Mr. Roger Patrick Emery, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Emery, 4365 Duart Road. The wedding will take place in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Saturday, August 13 at 8 p.m. Dr. J. L. W. McLean will officiate. (Photos by Leonard Holmes.)

Rector Opens Garden Party

Dr. A. W. L. Ashley, rector of St. Mary's Church, Metchoin, officially opened the annual garden party, held at the Duke Road home of Mr. J. S. Jarman. More than 300 guests were present and a sum of $400 was realized. Women's auxiliary of the church sponsored the affair and auxiliary president, Mrs. H. E. Hubbard, and Mrs. Ashley, acted as hostesses.

General conveners were Mrs. R. Weir, Mrs. J. Taylor, Mrs. R. Davidson, Mrs. G. Nelson, Mrs. J. Walker and Mrs. G. Argall. They were assisted by Mrs. G. Nelson, Mrs. C. Morgan, Mrs. W. Broseau and Mrs. G. Griffith, home cooking; Mrs. J. Wheatcroft and Miss Ann Wheatcroft, aprons; Mrs. C. Pike and Miss Frances Weir, superfluities; Mrs. P. Strawson, Mrs. D. Truscott and Mrs. Buxton, sewing; Mrs. W. Whitney Griffiths, guessing games; R. Patston, garden produce; Major R. Davidson, gold rush; John Lambier and Gay Young, Sally Ann; Andrea Walker and Terry Nelson, ice cream; Misses Sheila Hall, Caroline Argall and Lee Mitchell, ponies.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

No Fads, But Styles Feminine And Wearable at Fall Preview

The New York Couture Groups' 35th National Press Week draws to a close tonight and fall and winter 1960 fashion collections are officially launched.

Looking ahead it is very evident that no one will have to flip their lid over fashion fads.

The coming season will see elegance, ease and wearability. Current fashions will be in the height of style for at least three years and easily wearable for a couple of years after that. Designers are wise enough to know that women are not yet ready to break away from the feminine, flattering designs of the past few seasons.

Collections presented to the fashion press this past week were not explosively different, but gently charged with fashion changes. No one has turned the fashion world topsy-turvy, thank goodness!

Christian Dior collection, designed in Paris, for the women of North America is named "The Soignée Look." In the suit group this talented young man has widened the shoulder line slightly, used large patch pockets with flaps. His coats follow the triangular silhouette with controlled fullness graduating toward the hemline. His most exciting day dresses nonchalantly skim the torso to the hipbone and from there set skirts swinging with fine gathers, which taper into a narrower hemline, giving a charming decanter shape.

Dior's gala event gowns are often paired with companion coats or stoles in matching fabrics.

Oleg Cassini still holds to the figure moulding sheath but this season he showed a number of one-piece casual dresses with a sportswear look. Knit sweater overblouses, elongated and easy fitting these bodices: top slender matching wool skirts.

Davidow coats and suits will continue to yield well-dressed fashion dividends. The lady-like natural silhouette sets the over-all mood of the soft-spoken fabrics which have always been this designer's trademark.

Cell Chapman designs have been tagged "orchidaceous." Lush, light softness of fabric; gentle, curvaceous roundness or shallow drapery that gives an exotic, seamless shaping, and the deep tropical shades of orchids from greenish brown to pinkish mauve to a flash of crimson and the most luminous white, all contribute to the hothouse beauty of this collection.

DEAR ABBY...

Faux Pas!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday the little girl next door received her first communion. She was dressed from head to toe in white and looked like an angel. Her parents gave her a party. Not a party for a seven-year-old, but an adult party with drinks and canapés for all their friends.

We went but we didn't want to mix our drinks with a little girl's communion day. We'll drink and joke and dance, but not at a party for a little girl who is so full of her church and God.

Why didn't her parents give her a party with ice cream and cake and children's fun? By 10 o'clock the parents and guests were in no communion day condition. Why do people do this?

LITTLE GIRL'S FRIEND DEAR FRIEND: Some people use every occasion as an excuse to "whoop it up." Parents who plan to entertain in honor of a child should think twice before making this kind of blunder. It's unfair to the child and in the poorest possible taste.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is very unusual. I am considered very beautiful and have a very lovely figure, but nobody wants to take me out more than twice because they say I am so attractive they would never be able to hold onto me.

I am 21 and in love with a wonderful guy, but he stopped seeing me for the same reason.

How can I convince people that beauty is only skin deep and it's what is on the inside of a person that really counts? I feel like a China doll that nobody wants to touch for fear it might break.

CHINA DOLL DEAR CHINA DOLL: Open those big baby doll eyes and look at the truth. Beauty never has been and never will be a handicap to a girl who has brains and personality to back it up. If men do not date a beautiful girl with a lovely figure more than twice, she had better get her best friend to tell her the real reason.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Teen-agers Want to Know," send 25 cents and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Double Ring Wedding Performed In St. Andrew's Presbyterian

A honeymoon in Banff and in the United States followed the recent marriage in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Miss Amy Isabester Myers and Frederick Reinhold Chwojka. Dr. J. L. W. McLean conducted the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oma Myers of Victoria and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Chwojka of Munchen, Germany.

Tall baskets of white Shasta daisies and pink gladioli decorated the church and guest pews were marked with lily of the valley and white roses attached to lace dollies.

BOUFFANT GOWN

For her marriage, the bride chose a floor-length gown of nylon net and lace. It was fashioned with lace panel front and back and a bodice sprinkled with seed pearls and sequins. Lace medallions trimmed the bouffant skirt. Her fingertip scalloped edged veil was held by a headress of sequins and her jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of red rosebuds and white gardenias. Bride was given in marriage by her father.

Matron of honor Mrs. M. A. Gibson, bride's sister, wore a candy silk organza dress and whimsie hat of pink flowers. Her bouquet was of white gladioli. Another sister, Miss Jean Myers, was bridesmaid. She wore a lime silk dress, whimsie hat of mauve and green flowers and carried a cascade of pink gladioli. Two little flower girls, nieces of the bride, Therese Ann Davis and Christina Lee Gibson, wore yellow silk organza frocks, yellow floral headpieces and carried baskets of yellow roses and blue and yellow daisies. Erich Kellner was best man and the ushers were Robert Scott and Jerry Mothes.

A four-tier cake, decorated with pink rosebuds and bells, centred bridal table at a reception in War Amputations' Hall. Hall was decorated with clusters of white wedding bells, pink and white ribbons and miniature gladioli. William Glass, Bellevue, Wash., uncle of the bride, proposed the toast.

Leaving on honeymoon, the bride donned a teal blue suit with white accessories. Her hat was in blue and she had a corsage of pink carnations.

Jennifer Maunsell Married This Morning At Ceremony in Christ Church Cathedral

Christ Church Cathedral was setting this morning for the wedding of Jennifer Margaret, second daughter of Rev. John Harcourt Maunsell and Mrs. Maunsell of Kere-meos, B.C., and Edward Clive Shackelford, Victoria, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Shackelford of Adelaide, South Australia. Dean Brian Whitlow conducted the ceremony.

Purcell's "Trumpet Voluntary", Handel's "Water Music" and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" were played by organist Richard Proudman during the service.

The tall, fair-haired bride entered the cathedral on the arm of her father. Her classic gown of white delustrated satin was fashioned on empire lines with skirt sweeping to floor length, and slightly en train. Fitted bodice featured a rounded neckline and tiny point sleeves. Her short veil was held by a delicate headress of pearls and mother-of-pearl sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses and green ivy.

Maid of honor Miss Wendy Love, the bride's cousin, wore a floor length silk gown in indigo and gilded green hues styled on similar lines to the bride's gown. The four bridesmaids were dressed in identical full length delustrated satin gowns in muted green tones. They were Miss Robin Maunsell and Miss Melinda Maunsell, bride's sisters; Miss Maureen Hemming, bride's cousin, and Miss Jill Robertson. All five wore head circlets of tiny white carnation buds and ivy and carried matching bouquets.

Best man was James Taylor and ushers were David Brown, Ove Witt, Peter Bruton and Edward Harris.

Uncle of the bride, G. H. Love, proposed the toast at a reception in the garden at Olde England Inn. A three-tier cake, decorated with white roses, was cut by the newlyweds. Receiving guests, mother of the bride wore a full skirted silk dress in green tones. Her hat was a whimsy of flowers and her corsage a gardenia.

The bride chose for the wedding trip by motor to San Francisco, a blue, white and olive green printed silk suit. Her accessories were in bright navy.

Mr. and Mrs. Shackelford will make their home in Victoria.

Enjoying cooling west coast breezes after a motor trip from Ottawa via the Trans-Canada highway, are Capt. the Hon. Terence V. Stopford, RN, and Mrs. Stopford, and their two sons, six-year-old Philip and his younger brother, Robert. Capt. Stopford, who is presently on a tour of naval installations in the Esquimalt area, is assistant naval liaison officer on staff of the United Kingdom Commissioner to Canada. Combining business with pleasure, the family plan to leave Victoria next Friday, and to spend three weeks travelling in the United States before returning to their home in Ottawa. They sail for England in early November.

Young Musician Home from Vienna Already 'Booked Up' to Perform

It didn't take vivacious Miss Regina Rauch, 19-year-old bass fiddle player long to get back into musical circulation? The attractive miss, who, for the past 16 months has been studying music in Vienna, arrived home on Wednesday and already has an engagement to play with the Victoria Symphony Orchestra at its second summer concert in the Butchart Gardens, Monday evening.

PLAYED HERE

"How could I resist?" says Regina. "After all, I did play with the orchestra for two years. It's like a second 'coming home' to join it again!"

In Vienna, Regina had the "wonderful" opportunity to study with Prof. Ruehm, string soloist in the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra, and head of the Vienna Academy of Music.

"He is a great man," she says. "The young musician had two lessons a week with Prof. Ruehm. 'I was an oddity in my class,' she says. 'I was the only girl (and the first in the academy's history) to play the heavy and cumbersome bass fiddle."

Vienna itself was really new for her. She was born in Salzburg, Austria, and came with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rauch to Canada in 1954.

Regina learned English very quickly in a special class and very soon was attending Victoria High School. "There, in the school orchestra, is where I became really interested in the bass fiddle," she tells you. From there she went on to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

While overseas, Regina was given the opportunity to play in five orchestras. "This was good practise."

"She has great aspirations to do concert work."

In Europe? "Unfortunately no," she sighs. "In the old country, women are not accepted too easily in orchestras for full-time work. Men make up the symphonies there."

However, Regina does not let this stop her plans for the future.

"I would like to return to Vienna, take my final examinations in the senior academy, then enter an orchestra and do full time work somewhere. If I cannot find the opportunity here, I will go elsewhere—my bass and I are inseparable."

MATRICULATION

● SUPPS TO WRITE?

For candidates who have failed in June examinations, special tuition in all Matriculation subjects is being offered at the School from July 26th to August 18th. About 25 hours of tuition, designed to prepare the candidate for the Supplemental Examinations, will be provided in each subject. Information about fees and timetable may be obtained from the Principal. Classes will be limited to fourteen in number. Early registration is therefore recommended.

● THE DAY SCHOOL

A regular Day School for girls and boys will begin September 8th, 1960. Courses required in the University Entrance programme will be offered at the Grades 10 and 11 level, with Grade 12 coming into operation next year. The School's "No-Frills" policy will be adhered to and the highest possible academic standard will be the aim of the tutors. Classes will be limited to 16 in number, and admission will be based upon competitive Entrance Examinations in English and Mathematics. These examinations will be held on or about August 10th. Complete details may be obtained from the Principal.

● THE EVENING DIVISION

The School will provide, through the medium of evening classes, tuition in subjects required to complete University Entrance standing according to the Interrupted Programme Regulations of the Department of Education. Designed specifically for adults who left school in Grades 10 or 11, this course will commence September 12th. Since careful investigation of candidates' academic records and study plans will be necessary, it is recommended that potential students in this category make early enquiries at the School.

Release Airmen U.S. Pleads in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Soviet Union Friday asked the UN Security Council to "insist" that the United States stop what the Russians charged were "new aggressive actions" by the U.S. Air Force against Russia and prevent their recurrence.

Vasily V. Kuznetsov, a first deputy foreign minister, flew here from Moscow to present the Soviet case before the council on the U.S. RB-47 plane incident.

Kuznetsov, in language even stronger than that used by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the council last May on the downing of the American U-2 spy plane, introduced a resolution that would also condemn "these continuing provocative actions" by the U.S. Air Force and regard them as "aggressive acts."

Henry Cabot Lodge, the chief U.S. delegate, was the only other speaker Friday and he made only an interim reply, pending a full-dressed speech Monday when the debate will be resumed.

GAVE U.S. POSITION

Lodge repeated the American position that the RB-47, shot down by a Soviet plane July 1, was not over Soviet territory as the Russians claimed.

He again appealed to the Soviet Union to release two captured airmen the Russians claimed were the only survivors of the crew. One was killed and four others are missing.

PROVOCATIVE ACTIONS

Kuznetsov said that the U.S. "systematically undertakes provocative actions against another state and is thereby constantly placing the whole world before what is in fact tantamount to a crucible."

The wives of the six crew members of the RB-47 listened from the gallery as Kuznetsov made his bitter attack on the U.S., and the women appeared tired and bewildered by the debate. The Russian wound up with denunciation of American bases everywhere.

NAMED premier-designate of Italy Friday night was Amintore Fanfani, who will head a Christian Democrat government which has pledged support of three smaller centre parties.

WEST BERLIN THREAT DENIED

'Silly Season Story'

LONDON (Reuters)—News papermen often call the summer months the "silly season," a time for ridiculous stories—to wit:

Rumors that "something is happening" in West Berlin started people guessing in two continents Friday. All they produced were denials and ignorance—and nothing in West Berlin itself.

First word of the rumors came with a report a story was going round the London commodity market that "something is happening in West Berlin."

It was not clear whether the "something" was physical in the way of disturbances, or political.

Then White House press spokesman, James Hagerty, was asked at Newport, R.I., if he knew anything of a rumor that Russia and East Germany might be preparing a military move against West Berlin within the next month.

Hagerty said this was the first he had heard of it. The United States state department said it had received no intelligence information on any such impending move.

Berlin was investigated. Reporters reached allied sources who said they were unaware of any reports that Russia and East Germany were preparing a military move against West Berlin.

Sources close to the three Western allied military garrisons in West Berlin all appeared surprised when confronted with a rumor to this effect.

A British spokesman said: "It sounds like a story someone cooked up on a very quiet day."

HOSPITAL INSURANCE PLAN QUEBEC'S GOAL

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Quebec's new Liberal administration will try to swing a deal with the Conservative federal government on hospital insurance, Premier Jean Lesage said Friday night.

The premier, who leaves today for next week's federal-provincial fiscal conference in Ottawa, said he was convinced "we can reach an agreement which will be in conformity with the special situation of Quebec." He said he would submit his plan to federal Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith.

City Student Leads B.C. School Graduates

... average 94.125

Terrence Chew Leung of 1346 Harrison Street, Victoria, today won the Governor-General's Silver Medal and a University and Chris Spencer Foundation general proficiency scholarship of $500 awarded to the Grade 12 candidate with the highest standing in British Columbia.

Terrence is a student at Victoria High School.

He averaged 94.125 per cent. Terry said Friday that the only scholarship prizes he had won previously had been a prize for French. He is planning to enrol at Victoria University in the fall but isn't sure "what I'm going in for."

His win brought the honor of educating B.C.'s leading student to Victoria High School for the sixth time and to the Greater Victoria School District for the eighth time in 12 years.

VICTORIAN SECOND

Another Victoria youth, John Hartley-Sergeant, 3333 Henderson, who also matriculated from Victoria High, won a similar University and Chris Spencer Foundation $500 scholarship for the second highest standing in the school district. He averaged 93 per cent.

The awards were announced today by Education Minister Leslie Peterson. He said winners of B.C. government scholarships were now being selected.

John Edward Chamberlain, 513 Transit, a student at St. George's private school, Vancouver, won another Chris Spencer Foundation scholarship winner with an average 93.25 per cent.

OTHERS STILL OPEN

Richard John Williams of Courtenay won a $200 Royal Institution scholarship with a grade 13 standing of 86.7 per cent while Charles C. Pentland, a Vancouver boy attending Shawnigan Lake School, won a $500 scholarship for highest grade 12 standing in three school districts, with 92.5 per cent.

The announcement by Mr. Peterson noted that winning a University and Chris Spencer Foundation $500 scholarship "does not preclude a student from competing for the two special $2,500 Chris Spencer scholarships concerning which an announcement will soon be made."

Results of high school matriculation examinations were mailed to parents throughout British Columbia Friday afternoon.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Wife Charged With Murder

(Compiled From CP)

CRESTON—Mrs Violet May Benson was charged Friday night with murder in the shotgun slaying early Friday of her husband, Russell Benny Benson, 56, at their nearby Arrow Creek home.

Police said Benson died soon after midnight of a wound inflicted by a 12-gauge shotgun blast.

The Bensons came here several years ago from Fingal, N.D. They have four daughters, the eldest 15 years old and the youngest three years old.

FATHER ACQUITTED

VANCOUVER — Michael Potoczny, 39, was acquitted in police court Friday on a charge of beating his 10-year-old stepson. Magistrate Gordon Scott said he could not find that Potoczny had exceeded reasonable force in punishing the boy. The stepson appeared at police headquarters July 7 suffering a black eye, bruises and a broken rib.

ARMED ROBBERY

NEW WESTMINSTER — Two armed bandits Friday held up a Cash-and-Carry wholesale department store in New Westminster and escaped with $250. The men forced three employees and four customers to lie on the floor while they rifled the cash register.

DECISION TUESDAY

VANCOUVER — The B.C. Court of Appeal will hand down its decision Tuesday in the case of Irene Rebrin, University of B.C. lecturer who is seeking to upset an immigration department order for her deportation.

TOURIST STRICKEN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The body of a United States visitor who collapsed and died earlier this week in rugged country 30 miles east of here while on a vacation prospecting trip was carried out of the bush Friday by an eight-man RCMP party.

Lewis Earl Hagbo, 49, of Bremerton, Wash., was prospecting in the Lost Creek Gold Mine area with his brother-in-law, Frank U. Mattson, of Bainbridge Island, Wash., when he was stricken.

Mattson hiked six miles over mountainous country to the nearest farm and reported the death late Wednesday. The area is named after a mine sought ever since an Indian appeared in New Westminster 70 years ago with a fortune in gold which he said came from a mine there. The Indian was hanged for murder the following year without revealing exact location of the mine.

More than 20 men have died in the intervening years while seeking the mine in almost impassable country.

Adam Turnbull Funeral Service Here Monday

Funeral services will be held Monday in Hayward's Chapel for Adam Turnbull, 73, of 1918 Crescent, who died Wednesday in Kamloops while on a trip to Calgary.

The service, at 1:30 p.m., will be conducted by Rev. C. R. McGillivray.

Born in Scotland, he represented that country in international track meets until he moved to Saskatoon in 1911. He came to Victoria three years ago.

Mr. Turnbull is survived by his widow, Jean; a daughter Mrs. J. R. Surtees, of Victoria; a sister, brother and grandchildren.

Provinces To Levy Own Taxes?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times' Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Premiers of the 10 provinces may find themselves under pressure from the federal government to take back responsibility for levying their own taxes, as the preliminary discussions get underway at the dominion-provincial conference here Monday.

At the tough bargaining talks Ottawa may suggest that it still collect the taxes but that they be taken out of the taxpayers' pockets in the name of the province wherein the taxpayer resides, thus shifting the responsibility for the level of taxation from the federal to provincial governments.

British Columbia will join with the other provinces Monday in pressing Ottawa for more money under the existing tax rental agreements. At the same time it will enter into preliminary discussions for improving the financial deal for the provinces in the proposed new agreement to become effective April 1, 1962.

When the dominion-provincial meetings get under way the premiers will hammer home the need for additional funds to be made payable immediately. They will also stress the need for municipalities for increased income now and in the future.

The draft agenda of the conference scheduled to continue for three days has been a closely guarded secret. However, the Times has learned that it has nine points. These are understood to include:

1. Opening statements.
2. Tax Arrangements—A discussion of the possible arrangements after March 31, 1962, under the following headings:
(A) Arrangements with respect to personal income tax, corporation income tax and succession duties.
(B) Equalization and fiscal need payments—the principles underlying equalization and fiscal need payments and an examination of possible formulae and of the existing arrangements including equalization, the Atlantic provinces' adjustments grant and any special circumstances relating to the financial position of the province of Newfoundland after March 31, 1962.

3. Uniform rules for allocation of corporate profits and the income of individuals to provinces.
4. Taxation of natural resource industries.
5. Sharing of the federal income tax collected for corporations whose main business

PRAYER FOR TODAY
Father of mercy, fill us with Thy blessings this day. As we look upon all the beauty that surrounds us, help us to see that these things express Thy love and concern for us. Take from us all desires for the drab, the shabby, and the unlovely things of life and help us to love that which is great and beautiful. We pray in the name of our Master. Amen.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifteen Rockefeller supporters Friday night picketed the headquarters of New Yorkers for Nixon carrying signs that read, "We want Rocky" and "We want a convention, not a coronation."

Waving a statement he had issued in New York with Nixon's approval, Rockefeller said, "If you don't think that represents my views, you're crazy."

'CORONATION' CONVENTION?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifteen Rockefeller supporters Friday night picketed the headquarters of New Yorkers for Nixon carrying signs that read, "We want Rocky" and "We want a convention, not a coronation."

Waving a statement he had issued in New York with Nixon's approval, Rockefeller said, "If you don't think that represents my views, you're crazy."

He Couldn't Refuse a Draft
The governor told newsmen he and Nixon discussed the question of the vice-presidential nomination and that he repeated he would not take it under any circumstances. He said Nixon understood this.

But some Republican leaders maintained that Rockefeller could not refuse a convention draft as Nixon's running-mate. Assuming the Republican resolutions committee goes along with the Nixon-Rockefeller agreement, these leaders said that having got the platform he wanted, the governor could not with good grace reject a bid to serve the party. It appeared unlikely now that Rockefeller's name would even be put before the convention as a favorite-son candidate for the presidential nomination.

NO NOMINATION
NEW YORK State Republican chairman Judson Morhouse, who greeted Rockefeller at the airport, said he did not think the governor would be put in nomination against Nixon as long as he keeps insisting he is not a candidate.

Rockefeller's position has been that he is not a candidate but would accept a genuine draft for the top post. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York also told newsmen he did not believe Rockefeller would be put in nomination.

Earlier, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said that although the vice-president and the governor discussed the second place on the ticket, "no deal was made."

SOVIET PLANE CHARGES DENIED BY Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said categorically today that Russian charges that aircraft carrying nuclear weapons took off from Canadian bases "had no foundation in fact whatever."

He made the statement to the Commons in reply to a question by H. W. Herridge, (CCF, Kootenay West) who quoted Russian protests in the United Nations.

Congo Nation 'In Collapse'

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—A United Nations official here said today the Congo as a modern republic has "virtually collapsed."

KATANGA URGES:

'United States Of Congo'

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—Premier Moïse Tshombe of Katanga province today proposed a "United States of the Congo."

He told a press conference he would willingly work with the central Congolese government, from which Katanga seceded July 11, if it would agree to his proposal.

Tshombe said he favored a confederation of the Congo's provinces in place of a single government as the best solution. He appealed to other Congolese leaders to support such a project.

Gilbert Pongo, a newspaperman close to Tshombe who also addressed the press conference, described President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana and President Sekou Toure of Guinea as being "a bridge between Africa and Moscow."

Tshombe said he agreed with that view. Pongo said he was going to the United Nations to speak against Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba who left for New York Friday. Tshombe already has denounced Lumumba as "an unscrupulous bandit."

The provincial premier said today he had declared Katanga's independence to save it from economic ruin and anarchy.

Both Europeans and Congolese wondered how the confused Congo Republic would react to the absence of its "strongman," Premier Patrice Lumumba, now on his way to North America.

CONGO REBELS FOILED IN BID FOR $8,000,000

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY
LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—An attempt to prevent the departure from Stanleyville of an aircraft with 400,000,000 Congo francs ($8,000,000) aboard was reported today by the plane's captain, Michael D. McCallum of Winnipeg.

McCallum, 37, ignored the order not to leave the airport, hurriedly took off and flew to Leopoldville with the sh and the Congo secretary of state for finance and a United Nations official who had gone to Stanleyville to collect the money from the Congo central bank.

The cash was urgently needed to replenish the almost-empty coffers of the country's main central bank in the capital.

McCallum in an official report to his employers, Sabena Airlines, said he had a crew of three aboard his DC-4 and the finance secretary of state, Andre Tshibangu, and the UN official as passengers.

The UN official said the object of the flight was to pick up at Stanleyville several cases containing 400,000,000 Congo francs required urgently by the central bank in Leopoldville.

A group of Ethiopian UN troops who, McCallum said, appeared to have "the airport under control met the plane on arrival at Stanleyville."

When Tshibangu and the UN official tried to leave the field,

Four Drowned Near Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rescuers watched in horror today as a 57-foot fishing boat sank slowly into the depths of Georgia Strait, its occupants still knocking frantically for help on the inside of the overturned hull.

"It was terrible, just terrible," said Frank Wright, 41, one of the rescuers. "We were so close and they were alive up till the last minute."

Three men were believed drowned when the boat, Unimak, pulled loose from rescue boats supporting it and submerged just after skindivers had brought out the body of a 19-year-old girl.

The Unimak's cook, Robert Pederson, 30, of Vancouver, carrying the skindivers arrived.

Skindiver Wright, 41, owner of Mercury Water Taxi at Horseshoe Bay, said he got into a skindiving costume as soon as he arrived at the scene.

"Another kid from one of the boats, Wayne Stanton, of Lorde, knew something about skindiving so he came down with me.

"We went into the wheelhouse and found the body of a girl. We didn't know if she was dead or alive but we brought her right up.

"Then we went down again and started looking for the other two people. (It was learned later that three were aboard.) We searched the galley and then we tried to find the door to the engine room. We couldn't find the door so we surfaced again and asked the cook how to get in.

"Suddenly I Felt a Funny Sensation"
He said the door led from the wheelhouse but it was jammed. We went down again and tried to force the door open. Suddenly I felt a funny sensation as though the boat was changing position. At the same time a lifeline held by Hickey and Elms was jerked frantically.

"We came right up and saw the boat was losing air and slowly going down. The knocking was still going on.

"The freighter Brentwood was standing by and its crew quickly rigged a line to the Unimak but as the boat began to sink the line snapped the Brentwood's mast and slowly sank.

"It was just terrible, just terrible."

Ten vessels in the area, including the Canadian Pacific hired Princess of Vancouver, had raced to the scene off Cape Roger Curtis, 10 miles from here at the southern tip of Bowen Island, answering call for assistance from the Cape Flattery. They circled the Unimak to form a breakwater against the waves and make rescue attempts easier.

It was three hours after the collision before the fishing boat finally sank in about 400 feet of water. There was no immediate attempt to recover the bodies of the three trapped men.

It was not known if the Unimak carried an axe with which the men might have attempted to chop through the hull, which RCMP said was solidly constructed of three-inch planking.

hired crew to return to the plane where they remained. Meanwhile, Tshibangu who with the UN official had spent the night at a nearby guesthouse, got into town and with the help of a United Nations guard, succeeded in picking up his cases of banknotes which were later loaded into the aircraft.

McCallum had been asked by the Sabena station manager to take along some European refugees awaiting transportation to Leopoldville. He quickly decided, however, not to wait for them, started the aircraft engines and taxied out for take-off.

"While taxiing, people were waving their arms, indicating that we were to stop our engines," McCallum said.

"I ignored all of this and entered the runway. An RAF Hastings had just landed and was taxiing back down the runway. I asked him to clear the runway immediately which he did."

FOREST FIRES HIT POCKETBOOK

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor
Six weeks ago logging trucks in the interior of B.C. were frequently stalled by mud. That's the kind of weather they were having.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

TORONTO (CP)—Imperial Oil Ltd. had estimated net earnings in the six months ended June 30 of $30,686,000, or 97 cents a share, compared with $23,334,000, or 74 cents, in the corresponding period last year.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

W. O. Twiss, president said in announcing the figures that continuing improvements in operating efficiency and higher product sales, particularly of motor fuels and petrochemicals, were factors in the increase. In addition, certain unusual factors, such as inventory losses, had adversely affected earnings in the first half of last year.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

Mr. Twiss said Imperial's crude production showed only "a modest" increase, because, under Alberta's prorationing system, the company has not shared proportionately in the increase of more than eight per cent in Western Canada's crude oil output. Production from the company's nine refineries rose by 6,000 barrels a day.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

As a forest service official said Friday: "Those planes are doing a fine job. But let's face it. To control this thing we need rain. All we can get. Or else we're in trouble."

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

The spokesman wasn't talking "off the top of his head."

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

In the week of July 15-22, you and I and every taxpayer spent $704,000 to fight forest fires, most of them in the Kamloops-Nelson area. No more money has ever been spent for the purpose in B.C.—before or since.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

Some days the cost soared to $104,000. That, too, is a record. It beats by $4,000 the most spent previously to combat timber blazes. The old record was set two years ago.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

When timber lands around Prince George were lit up like Halloween.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

If the current expenditure is sustained for the next three weeks there is little doubt that the 1960 bill will surpass the record 1958 tab of $4,528,127.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

Much of the current havoc was unavoidable. Not even careless campers can be blamed for the lightning strike of July 13 which seared a patch covering 11,000 square miles.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

But the figures are sufficiently impressive and substantial to make everyone realize that when Smoky Bear advises caution in the woods he's not barking up the wrong tree.

Imperial Oil Earnings Show Healthy Rise

MONEY ON THE MOVE—Whether the Pacific Northern Railway is fact or fiction, the fact remains that the $250,000, 000 proposed expenditure gave B.C. an extra busy industrial expansion face in June. ... Other projects underway: MacMillan Bloedel and Powell River's $24,000,000 newsprint machine at Port Alberni (providing jobs for 200 and making it Canada's third largest newsprint producer); plant expansion by B.C. Ice and Cold Storage, Vancouver, and $100,000 parts and repair depot by Finning Tractor at Williams Lake.

Come daylight Sunday all roads will lead to Saanich Inlet waters for the 15th edition of the Solarium Salmon Derby.

Fishing will start at 6 a.m. and close at 2 p.m.

Contestants to qualify for prizes—and there are many of them—must weigh in their catches at three weigh-in stations: Hall's, Holders and the Anchorage. Fish must be on the floats before the closing gun.

Prizes will be presented at the Anchorage at 3 with the public invited. (See story Page 10.)

FINAL BULLETINS

Vancouver Pro in Eastern Golf Final

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Gray, 51-year-old Toronto Scarborough professional, and Vancouver's Bill Thompson today qualified for the 18-hole final in the Miller golf match play tournament here this afternoon with close semi-final wins.

Woman Saved From 'Kidnap-Burglars'

GREAT NECK, N.Y. (UPI)—A burglar shot a lawyer in the face at his home today and then kidnapped his red-haired wife in a family car. The woman was rescued unharmed in Connecticut when police ran down the car and seized the abductor.

B.C. Man Killed in Wash. Car Crash

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. (AP)—A British Columbia man and a Mount Vernon woman were killed instantly today when the cars they were driving collided head-on a mile north of Burlington.

Dead are George E. Halliday, about 40, of North Surrey, B.C., and Mrs. Elmer M. Erickson, 51, Mount Vernon.

The State Patrol said Halliday was southbound on Highway 99 and on the wrong side.

Columbia Statement 'Soon'

NANAIMO (CP)—Minister of Lands and Forests Ray Williston told a Rotary meeting here Friday an important announcement regarding the proposed development of the Columbia River for electric power is imminent.

"Within a very short time a statement on the Columbia River situation will be made. There is a good proposal coming," said Mr. Williston.

Congo Nation 'In Collapse'

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—United Nations officials reported today a technical hitch has developed in the full withdrawal of Belgian troops from Leopoldville.

They said that completion of the withdrawal, scheduled for 6 p.m. tonight, would be held up until Monday morning.

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (UPI)—A United Nations official here said today the Congo as a modern republic has "virtually collapsed."

A UN spokesman declined to comment on new incidents of violence northwest of Elisabethville Friday but confirmed that they could cause new trouble for the infant republic.

"There is no doubt that if word of this gets spread around and magnified, there is a possibility of violent reaction from the Congolese here," he said.

The UN spokesman said Belgian troops were scheduled to leave Leopoldville by 6 p.m. but refused to speculate whether they would all be out by that time.

NO PAY CHEQUES
He admitted the possibility of disturbances at the end of the month when the Congolese will look for their pay cheques that would normally have come from Belgian employers who, almost to a man, have fled.

"These people are fast running out of money and food and there is always the possibility of trouble if some order cannot be restored to the economic life of the country," the UN official said.

Meanwhile, Sture Linner of Sweden, a UN technical representative here, said the health situation in the Congo is "extremely grave." He said that virtually all the Belgian doctors either had fled or were planning to leave as soon as the Belgian troops pull out.

"We have urgently appealed to the World Health Organization and the International Red Cross for doctors and nurses," he said.

Both Europeans and Congolese wondered how the confused Congo Republic would react to the absence of its "strongman" Premier Patrice Lumumba, now on his way to North America.

Provinces To Levy Own Taxes?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times' Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Premiers of the 10 provinces may find themselves under pressure from the federal government to take back responsibility for levying their own taxes, as the preliminary discussions get underway at the dominion-provincial conference here Monday.

At the tough bargaining talks Ottawa may suggest that it still collect the taxes but that they be taken out of the taxpayers' pockets in the name of the province wherein the taxpayer resides, thus shifting the responsibility for the level of taxation from the federal to provincial governments.

British Columbia will join with the other provinces Monday in pressing Ottawa for more money under the existing tax rental agreements. At the same time it will enter into preliminary discussions for improving the financial deal for the provinces in the proposed new agreement to become effective April 1, 1962.

IMMEDIATE NEED
When the dominion-provincial meetings get under way the premiers will hammer home the need for additional funds to be made payable immediately. They will also stress the need for municipalities for increased income now and in the future.

The draft agenda of the conference scheduled to continue for three days has been a closely guarded secret. However, the Times has learned that it has nine points. These are understood to include:

1. Opening statements.
2. Tax Arrangements—A discussion of the possible arrangements after March 31, 1962, under the following headings:
(A) Arrangements with respect to personal income tax, corporation income tax and succession duties.
(B) Equalization and fiscal need payments—the principles underlying equalization and fiscal need payments and an examination of possible formulas and of the existing arrangements including equalization, the Atlantic provinces' adjustments grant and any special circumstances relating to the financial position of the province of Newfoundland after March 31, 1962.

3. Uniform rules for allocation of corporate profits and the income of individuals to provinces.
4. Taxation of natural resource industries.
5. Sharing of the federal income tax collected for corporations whose main business

Clear Road for Nixon: Rocky Accepts Program

'CORONATION' CONVENTION?

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fifteen Rockefeller supporters Friday night picketed the headquarters of New Yorkers for Nixon carrying signs that read, "We want Rocky" and "We want a convention, not a coronation."

Chicago Sox Grab First

Scoring four runs in the sixth inning on a combination of two base hits, errors, walks and "sloppy" baseball, Chicago White Sox defeated the New York Yankees 5-3 today to forge into first place in the American League race.

It was a seventh straight win for the Sox who moved a game ahead of the New Yorkers. The Yanks and Sox play a double-header Sunday.

CHICAGO (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller and Richard M. Nixon made up their Republican platform differences today in a unity move which killed the last threat of opposition to Nixon's nomination for president.

Their agreement revived speculation that the New York governor might be drafted for vice-president at next week's Republican national convention despite a new denial by Rockefeller.

The two erstwhile antagonists met privately for six hours in a New York apartment and emerged today with a platform agreement which the governor could not with good grace reject a bid to serve the party.

It appeared unlikely now that Rockefeller's name would even be put before the convention as a favorite-son candidate for the presidential nomination.

New York State Republican chairman Judson Morhouse, who greeted Rockefeller at the airport, said he did not think the governor would be put in nomination against Nixon as long as he keeps insisting he is not a candidate.

Rockefeller's position has been that he is not a candidate but would accept a genuine draft for the top post. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York also told newsmen he did not believe Rockefeller would be put in nomination.

Earlier, Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's press secretary, said that although the vice-president and the governor discussed the second place on the ticket, "no deal was made."

Rescuers Unable To Help Victims

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rescuers watched in horror today as a 57-foot fishing boat sank slowly into the depths of Georgia Strait, its occupants still knocking frantically for help on the inside of the overturned hull.

"It was terrible, just terrible," said Frank Wright, 41, one of the rescuers. "We were so close and they were alive up till the last minute."

Three men were drowned when the boat, Unimak, pulled loose from rescue boats supporting it and submerged just after skindivers had brought out the body of a 24-year-old woman.

The Unimak's cook, Robert Pederson, 30, of Vancouver, was thrown clear and rescued when she flipped up and overturned after striking a tow cable between the fishpacker Cape Flattery and a barge.

Drowned were the skipper of the Unimak, Wilfred Poheo, about 35, and Bill Anderson Jr., about 30, both of Sointula, about 200 miles northwest of Vancouver in the Queen Charlotte Strait; Joan Hornell, 24, of Vancouver; and Dick Jolliffe, about 30, of Langley Prairie. Owner of the boat is Eric Johnson of Port Coquitlam, B.C.

Tragedy Described by Rescuers
The tragic story was told by Don Elms, 31, of Whalley, and Larry Hickey, 31, of North Vancouver, crew members of the boat Sea Fox II.

Hickey said the accident occurred at 11:30 p.m. and they were on the scene five minutes later. The Cape Flattery had already picked up the cook and all they could see was the overturned hull of the Unimak.

"We cruised around for half an hour looking for survivors and then we came back to the overturned hull," he said. "We jumped onto the hull to put a lantern on and then we heard the knocking from inside the hull. We knocked back four times to let them know that help had arrived. They answered back with four knocks."

Hickey said they got two lines on the boat, but it wasn't until 2:30 a.m. that a boat carrying the skindivers arrived.

Skindiver Wright, 41, owner of Mercury Water Taxi at Horseshoe Bay, said he got into a skindiving costume as soon as he arrived at the scene.

"Another kid from one of the boats, Wayne Stanton, of Lorde, knew something about skindiving so he came down with me.

"We went into the wheelhouse and found the body of a girl. We didn't know if she was dead or alive but we brought her right up.

"Then we went down again and started looking for the other two people. (It was learned later that three were aboard.) We searched the galley and then we tried to find the door to the engine room. We couldn't find the door so we surfaced again and asked the cook how to get in.

'Suddenly I Felt a Funny Sensation'
"He said the door led from the wheelhouse but it was jammed. We went down again and tried to force the door open. Suddenly I felt a funny sensation as though the boat was changing position. At the same time a lifeline held by Hickey and Elms was jerked frantically.

"We came right up and saw

CONGO REBELS FOILED

Canadian Pilot Saves Fortune

By ROBERT N. LINDSAY
LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—An attempt to prevent the departure from Stanleyville of an aircraft with 400,000 Congo francs ($80,000,000) aboard was reported today by the plane's captain, Michael D. McCallum of Winnipeg.

McCallum, 37, ignored the order not to leave the airport, hurriedly took off and flew to Leopoldville with the cash and the Congo secretary of state for finance and a United Nations official who had gone to Stanleyville to collect the money from the Congo central bank.

The cash was urgently needed to replenish the almost-empty coffers of the country's main central bank in the capital.

McCallum in an official report to his employers, Sabena Airlines, said he had a crew of three aboard his DC-4 and the finance secretary of state, Andre Tshibangu, and the UN official as passengers.

The UN official said the object of the flight was to pick up at Stanleyville several cases containing 400,000,000 Congo francs required urgently by the central bank in Leopoldville.

A group of Ethiopian UN troops who, McCallum said, appeared to have the airport under control met the plane on arrival at Stanleyville.

When Tshibangu and the UN official tried to leave the field, they were attacked in the terminal building by Congolese soldiers of the rebelling security force publique.

Tshibangu was struck in the face several times by the force publique commandant and several of the soldiers.

They disarmed the UN official.

ORDERED OFF PLANE
Meantime, several Ethiopian soldiers ordered the crew at gunpoint to disembark, searched them and took all their money and person effects.

After an hour, an Ethiopian

SILENUS

THE recent visit of the premier and members of his government to Salt Spring Island brought forth one of the finest examples of disrespectful attention of the century. We live in a time chiefly distinguished for a slavish adherence to a misconception concerning good manners; it seems to be the rule that one must never be rude. This is foolish; good manners only require that one never be rude unintentionally.

Well, there is a citizen of Salt Spring who has enough gumption to express his opinions forcibly and rudely when the appropriate occasion arises. The occasion of the premier's visit was appropriate for this sturdy islander to express certain of his opinions as to the politics and personality of our public potentate, and he did so.

He was to be seen, standing demurely among the cheering multitudes, the picture of political docility. Not a cheer, not a groan, not a catcall, escaped his lips as the great man and his entourage drew near. It was not until the official party was close enough to see that he opened his knapsack, took out his old army respirator, and put it on. He left it there until the bigwigs were well away downwind.

Now there is a man who ought to be watched. It is from such carefully conceived and executed sparks of rebellion that the fires of democracy are kindled. This man is dangerous, a menace. He could set people thinking; or worse still, laughing. And once the chuckle spread, all sorts of dire political tremors could result.

There is no weapon so devastating in the hands of a skillful operator as ridicule. Its potency lies in the fact that it appeals to all people, of all ages and stages of intelligence; and once it starts, it spreads like swamplife. More than one ruler has been dislodged by a well-timed joke.

Rulers, whether elected or effected, are singularly prone to ridicule. Their very position is ridiculous in the eyes of a reasonable man; they are obliged to be pompous, to assume the trappings of a sovereignty which is strictly illusory. They can no longer inspire fear; they doubtless hope they inspire love; they are certain they inspire respect. All too often this is not the case. And a ruler who inspires neither fear, love or respect is a setup for the horselaugh.

Maybe the man in the gasmask is the vanguard of sanity in British Columbia.

Mayor Unhappy Over Gov't Road Proposal

Mayor Percy Scurrell Friday said he is "not happy" with a provincial government offer to give the city up to $65,000 for road building if it matches the grant dollar for dollar.

Commenting on Vancouver Mayor Tom Alsbury's dissatisfaction with a similar deal of up to $355,000 for the mainland city, Mayor Scurrell said: "We're not any happier than Vancouver is because, in the first place, we have nothing in our budget to match $65,000 and in the second place the government can veto any particular road project we want to do."

"After all, this is tax money they've collected from us and yet they are curtailing the city in how it is to be used because we could only spend it on designated streets which may or may not fit in with our needs. "We just don't like it."

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

McDonald Park

SIDNEY REVIEW—Hon. Earle C. Westwood, minister of recreation in the B.C. government and member of the legislature for Nanaimo and the Gulf Islands, is doing a good job. Under his guidance more and more public camping grounds and marine parks are coming into existence. We give him full marks for the progress his department is making towards permitting British Columbians and tourists alike to enjoy outdoor living in this province.

He has taken steps to ensure that a valuable parcel of good land contiguous to McDonald Park will be included in the park and developed as camping sites. McDonald Park is the only public camping ground on the entire Peninsula. It has already proven inadequate as traffic throughout this district increases.

has already shown good judgment in retaining this 40-acre parcel of land for the use of the public in the years which lie ahead.

Underground

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—No matter how blue the sky, how pretty the clouds and how bright the sunshine or graceful the wheeling birds, Courtenay's skyline, like so many other towns, is constantly ugly with sagging wires.

Ald. A. H. Strachan brought up the matter in council, Monday, when the power commission's request to have more power poles on McPhee Avenue was heard.

Can't they go in the lane? Or can't they go underground? were questions asked.

Even putting these unsightly poles in the lane doesn't completely rid us of the ugliness.

The place for power and telephone cables is underground.

Concessions

WEST COAST ADVOCATE—City council would be well advised to take a second look at the proposal which would see a tax or licence imposed upon empty lots where potential downtown parking space is available. There is enough trouble now without placing further impediments in the road of parking assistance program.

Certainly safeguard the city and property owners through a regulating bylaw but by all means give consideration to the owners who are willing to maintain such lots for rental to those working in the downtown district. One can not conclude that this is a money-making venture similar to trailer parking lots where many services are demanded.

Downtown parking puts some activity into an empty lot that would otherwise grow weeds and gather other nuisance.

Every Fish Took a Prize In Big Derby

Eager young anglers—3,000 strong—landed 132 fish between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. Friday at the city playground annual fishing derby off Ogden Point breakwater.

The youngsters doubled last year's entries and tripled the catch.

Prizes, donated by the T. Eaton Co., were awarded by manager William Gilmour. All who caught fish were entitled to a prize.

Winner Russel Brice, 15, of 205 Burnside, who caught a two-pound rock cod was closely followed by John Adams, 13, of 2100 Cook, who hooked a one-pound nine-ounce red snapper. Bruce won a bicycle, John a rod and reel.

The winning fish was caught half-way down the breakwater on the inside.

Gordon Hartley, director of city playgrounds, said the 15 playground supervisors attending had "quite a rough time untangling tackle. I can't remember when so much tackle has been lost."

Halibut Fishing To Close July 31

Halibut fishing season which started May 1 in the two main west coast halibut fishing areas closes at 6 a.m. PST, Sunday, July 31, the International Pacific Halibut Commission announced today.

The areas affected by closure are Area 2, from Willapa Bay to Cape Spencer, and 1B from Hecate Head to Willapa Bay.

SOVIET PLANE CHARGES DENIED BY DIFENBAKER

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker said categorically today that Russian charges that aircraft carrying nuclear weapons took off from Canadian bases "had no foundation in fact whatever."

He made the statement to the Commons in reply to a question by H. W. Herridge, (CCF, Kootenay West) who quoted Russian protests in the United Nations.

WIRE BRIEFS

Union Asks Probe

VANCOUVER (CP)—The independent Canadian Ironworkers' Union has asked for a provincial government investigation into hiring and firing on the Second Narrows Bridge project by Dominion Bridge Company.

Gang Grabs $12,000

PRINCEVILLE, Que. (UPI)—A five-man machine gun-toting gang traded shots with police Friday in this quiet Quebec community and then escaped carrying with them approximately $12,000 loot from a bank holdup minutes earlier.

RCMP Probe Blaze

OTTAWA (UPI)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today investigated an early morning fire that caused "considerable" damage to a new federal government building in the south end of the city.

PROSECUTIONS THREATENED SPRINKLERS

NORTH COVICHAN—Reeve D. C. Morton said today it may be necessary to ban all sprinkling or prosecute offenders.

Sprinkling hours in Maple Bay have been cut down but property owners are not co-operating with the municipal council, Reeve Morton said.

The same thing is happening "to a lesser extent" in Chemainus, he said.

"It isn't regarded as an emergency yet, but this hot weather may keep on for another six weeks," Reeve Morton said.

KATANGA URGES:

'United States Of Congo'

ELISABETHVILLE, The Congo (Reuters)—Premier Moise Tshombe of Katanga province today proposed a "United States of the Congo."

He told a press conference he would willingly work with the central Congolese government, from which Katanga seceded July 11, if it would agree to his proposal.

Tshombe said he favored a confederation of the Congo's provinces in place of a single government as the best solution. He appealed to other Congolese leaders to support such a project.

Gilbert Pongo, a newspaperman close to Tshombe who also addressed the press conference, described President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana and President Sekou Toure of Guinea as being "a bridge between Africa and Moscow."

Tshombe said he agreed with that view.

Pongo said he was going to the United Nations to speak against Congolese Premier Patrice Lumumba who left for New York Friday. Tshombe already has denounced Lumumba as "an unscrupulous bandit."

The provincial premier said today he had declared Katanga's independence to save it from economic ruin and anarchy.

Pays Fine of $50

Robert J. Booth, 2738 Millstream, Langford, Friday in Colwood RCMP court was fined $50 and $3 costs for being a minor in possession of liquor.

the boat was losing air and slowly going down. The knocking was still going on.

"The freighter Brentwood was standing by and its crew quickly rigged a line to the Unimak but as the boat began to sink the line snapped the Brentwood's mast and slowly sank.

"It was just terrible, just terrible."

Ten vessels in the area, including the Canadian Pacific ferry Princess of Vancouver, had raced to the scene off Cape Roger Curtis, 10 miles from here at the southern tip of Bowen Island, answering call for assistance from the Cape Flattery. They circled the Unimak to form a breakwater against the waves and make rescue attempts easier.

It was three hours after the collision before the fishing boat finally sank in about 400 feet of water. There was no immediate attempt to recover the bodies of the three trapped men.

It was not known if the Unimak carried an axe with which the men might have attempted to chop through the hull, which RCMP said was solidly constructed of three-inch planking.

PILOT

lieutenant arrived to investigate. McCallum complained bitterly of the treatment and the lieutenant ordered the troops immediately to return the property.

McCallum explained their mission but he doubted if the lieutenant understood.

When an Ethiopian captain arrived at the aircraft he gave permission for McCallum and his crew to return to the plane where they remained. Meantime, Tshibangu who with the UN official had spent the night at a nearby guesthouse, got into town and with the help of a United Nations guard, succeeded in picking up his cases of banknotes which were later loaded into the aircraft.

McCallum had been asked by the Sabena station manager to take along some European refugees awaiting transportation to Leopoldville. He quickly decided, however, not to wait for them, started the aircraft engines and taxied out for take-off.

"While taxiing, people were waving their arms indicating that we were to stop our engines," McCallum said. "I ignored all of this and entered the runway. An RAF Hastings had just landed and was taxiing back down the runway. I asked him to clear the runway immediately which he did."
